Going, going, and coming back

Graduates keep going, but some have come back...for jobs. Seven such returnees are Jacki Wortinger, Danae Whetten, Dave VanLue, Judy Thomas, Betty Bultemeier, Marleen Leamon, and Sheree Rogers. Most stated that the reasons for returning to WHS were the summers off, the close proximity to their homes, and the fact that they enjoy teenagers.

Mrs. Wortinger, a member of the cooking staff, graduated in 1970. During high school she was actively involved in many sporting activities. After high school Mrs. Wortinger attended Grace College for two years.

Mrs. Whetten graduated in 1983. During high school she was a member of the yearbook staff and she was also an aide in the athletic office where she is currently a secretary.

A member of the science department, Mr. VanLue graduated in 1972. He was involved in the band, pep band, baseball, football, wrestling, foreign language club, FCA, FEA, and the class executive council.

Mrs. Thomas, library aide, graduated in 1977. During high school she was involved in athletics such as volleyball, basketball, and tennis.

Mrs. Bultemeier, secretary for the guidance department, graduated in 1970. During her high school career she belonged to the band, choir, cheerblock, and FEA. After high school she attended Ball State.

Mrs. Leamon, a member of the cooking staff, graduated in 1969. She continued her education by attending beauty college. In high school she was a cafeteria worker.

Mrs. Rogers was a member of the graduating class of 1975. She attended Ravenscroft Beauty College after high school. In high school, she was involved in GAA, which was the Girls' Athletic Association.

Most graduates keep on going when they finish their senior year, but some DO return.

The environment in the '80's and '90's

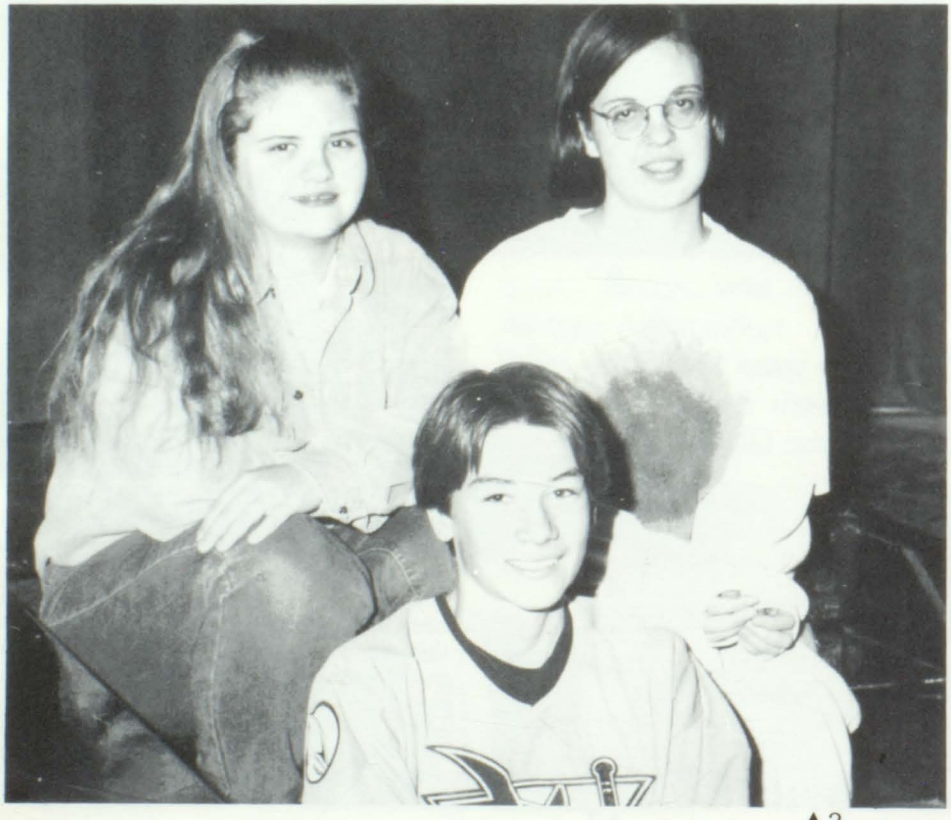

The academic super bowl teams studied environmental concerns during the '80's and '90's as their topic. The teams consisted of spell bowl, social science, science , math. fine arts, and English. The topics for math were exponents, similar polygons, serves, and sequence. The social studies team studied the books Environmental Science in the 80's and 90's, Earth in the Balance, and a geography textbook. The English team focused in on the environment. They read "A River Runs Through It," "Pilgrim at Tinker Creek," and a short story by Kurt Vonnegut. They also read poems by Robert Frost, Robert Penn Warren, Gerald Manley Hopkins, and Dylan Thomas. The members of the spell bowl were the first to compete in September. The team members were Alicia Prater, Amy Cockburn, Beth Cockburn, Mary Cockburn, April Hershberger, Laura Gunden, Mary Sholtey, Michelle Hershberger, and Josh Patterson. The other academic teams competed in March and April. There were three invitationals to practice and one actual competition in April.

A "rocking" success

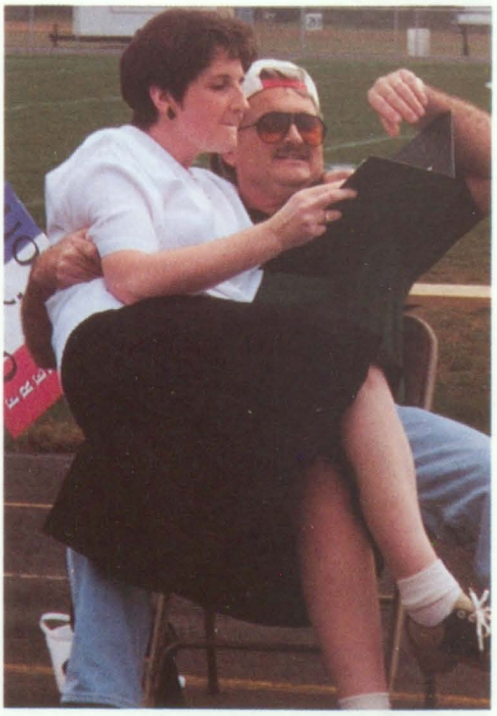

"The Warriors Will Rock You" was demonstrated in all aspects of Homecoming week. It was exhibited in the school, on the stage, in the stands, on the football field and during the first ever parade. SRC sponsor Mrs. Leach commented, "It was the most spirited year I have ever seen, and the classes were the most organized."

The competition between classes was tight. However, the powerful seniors with the theme of the Beatles captured victories in the lip sync, the class skit, powder puff and tied for first in the float competition. The juniors, with Elvis as their theme, were champs of the Fall Fling. The sophomores, who had the theme Queen, tied the seniors for first place in the float competition. The freshmen with the theme Van Halen edged out the seniors for a first place in the mural competition.

On Friday night, the Wawasee Warriors defeated the Warsaw Tigers 35-31 in the Homecoming game. During half-time Vince Beasley and Stephanie Bender were crowned Homecoming King and Queen. The runner-ups were Jenny Sorensen and Chad Everts. The court consisted of underclassmen juniors Andrea Sombronsky and Nick Baker; sophomores Luke Sawyer and Carly Beer; and freshmen Jay Haugh and Christa Olson. Homecoming was a "rocking" success.

Foreign exchange students say "Juhui!"

Wawasee was introduced to seven foreign exchange students. They were from Germany, Switzerland, and Bulgaria. At the beginning of the school year, they were quite confused, but they stuck with it. They had a very successful and enjoyable year becoming involved in many activities and clubs including foreign language club, soccer, newspaper, and swimming.

The exchange students wanted to thank everyone for making their year here fun and interesting. Phillipe Wampfler said, "I learned more than I have ever learned in one year, not only in academics, but also how to treat people and to help them. Juhui!" (oh, joy). Frank Conrad spoke for all of the exchange students when he said, "I love you, Wawasee!"

Frank Conrad

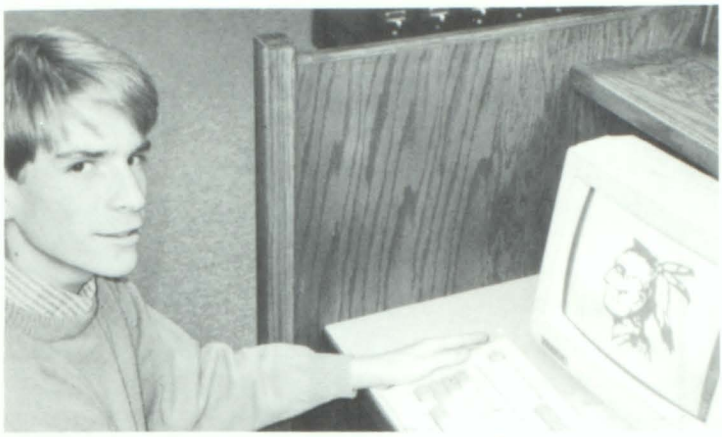

Frank is from Bavaria, Germany. He is staying with Tom and Jan Hodgson. His favorite activities in the U.S. include meeting people and going to the movies. He says there are many crazy people here in the U.S.

Philippe Wampfler

Birmenstorf, Aargau, Switzerland, is where Philippe is from. He is staying with Charles and Sue Koser. He enjoys watching people do weird things. He says that the main difference between the U.S. and Switzerland is the size of things.

Angela Krebs

Switzerland is where Angela is from. She is staying with Ed and Dea Kinney. She says that a major difference between the two countries is the amount of freedom young people get. She says she gets more freedom in Switzerland.

Jens-Holger Ziegler

Jens is from Augsburg, Germany. He is staying with Jerry and Brenda Shilling. He notices that the people are the same in Germany as in the U.S. Jens says that the major difference in the two countries is "the way of life." He enjoys going to plays while in the U.S.

Thomas Oehlenschlaeger

Thomas is from Copenhagen, Germany. He is staying with Keith and Teresa Thompson. He says that both in the U.S. and Germany people wear the same styles of clothes. Thomas notes that a major difference is the school system. He enjoys working on computers in the U.S.

Maxim Ivanov

Max is from Burgas, Bulgaria. He is staying with Roger and Vicki Karns. He enjoys playing sports like soccer and swimming and going out with girls. Max comments the major difference between his country and the U.S. is the language and the school periods.

Verena Zimmer

Verena is from Germany. She is staying with William and Judy Longcor. She is really enjoying her stay in the U.S. Her favorite place in the school is in the alcove by Mrs. Lant's room. One of Verena's favorite activities in the U.S. is hanging out with her friends.

Somewhere, in the middle of nowhere...

The play that had the audience rolling and the cast stuck in the trash was the funniest fall play yet, FAITH COUNTY. This hilarious comedy by Mark Landon Smith took place somewhere in the middle of nowhere in the south.... With a very small cast of nine and Miss Wooldridge as director, rehearsals moved along very slowly. Some of the cast members were in the trash; some were any where but practice. This play needed an athletic trainer. But as Holly Beer stated, "With a very small yet talented cast it all fell together very nicely." Performances were held on November 18th and 19th. With a county fair in the surge area, people were walking for cakes and winning prizes, before and after the play. It was a unique play both inside and outside the auditorium.

Games for fun and pride

Before the intramural basketball season began, there was a lot of speculation that this would be one of the most competitive seasons ever. The speculation proved to be true. With 12 teams in the league, this season made for one of the most exciting seasons in intramural history. There was even a team made up of faculty members that was named the Faculty Flops. While the league was very competitive, there were two teams that seemed to be invincible. They were Bad Horses and Run E Ketchup. However, the team that won the championship was KMM. Team members were Trent Beer, Rob Chalk, Jeromy Foltz, Mark Haab, Brent Farrell, Scott Hand, Tad Denton, and Jeremy Leiter.

In the spring the intramural volleyball league provided its share of fun and excitement for everyone who either watched or participated. The Voltron Crew were the champions by the end of the season in May.

Li'l Abner is a hit!

The spring play was Li'l Abner. The director was Tom Beckett, and assistant directors were Cynthia Thornburg, Kristin Wooldridge, and Joyce Dubach. The poster was designed by Jerry Johnson, and the program was designed by Claude Reeder, an art student teacher. There were two acts in the play; the first act consisted of twelve scenes and the second act consisted of seven scenes. The two main characters were Li'l Abner performed by Matt Stoll, and Daisy Mae performed by Rebecca Glaser. This was a very special play for Mr. Beckett because he performed as Li'l Abner twenty years ago. "I appreciated the support from students and directors on my first directorship of a musical. Wawasee has a lot of talent of which I was very proud," stated Beckett. Cyndi Thornburg commented, "There were moments I thought we'd never be ready, but the kids were super and the show was a hit." Kristin Wooldridge said, "It was fun trying to teach fifty kids at the same time one dance. It was definitely hard, but everyone worked with it and it turned out to be great."

A new addition to the art department

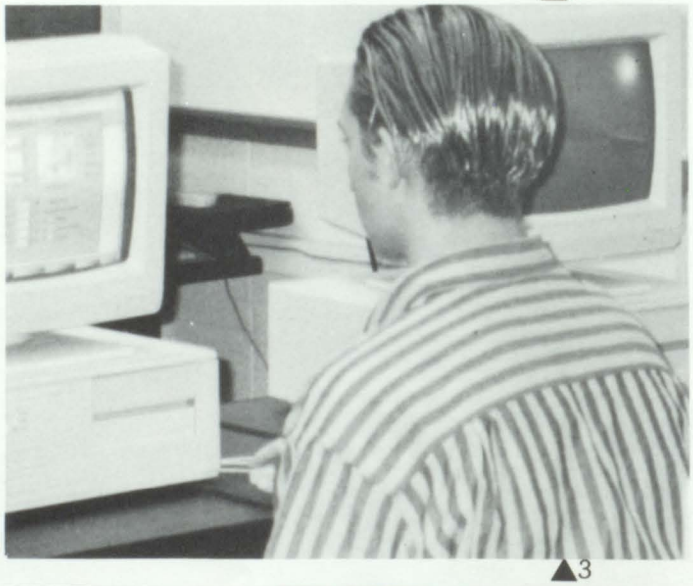

The art department added a new class to their curriculum: photography. In this class students learned to take pictures and develop them. This class also helped them to sharpen their skills of centering on the main subject of the picture and to know about different lighting in the background. Other art students were also able to try something new. Commercial design had a computer graphics segment added to the course. The students liked the different levels of difficulty throughout the year in their different classes. When asked about what he liked most about being in art, Mike Greider replied, " I like the challenge and the new things that we have been able to try this year." This was indeed a new and exciting year.

Show choirs have a swinging year

Varsity Singers and Dream Company had a busy year under the direction of Mr. Thomas Beckett. Besides the annual concerts for the school, both choirs performed outside concerts for area clubs and organizations at Christmas time. They participated in state solo and ensemble contests where they received superior ratings. The most exciting concert of the year for many was the Cedar Point trip over Memorial Day weekend. "Both Varsity Singers and Dream Company performed exceptionally well this year, and I am proud of their accomplishments," said Mr. Beckett.

Choirs sound great

The choirs provided enjoyment for many students. "I had a great year in choir; it was the best experience ever," commented Karen Shipley. The freshman choir was very large in size and competed in one competition in March. "They were a large group, but good to work with," stated Mr. Beckett. The two treble choirs consisted only of girls. They did not compete in any competitions, but did a great job in all the regular school concerts. In the spring all choirs participated in the annual Corporation Music Festival with the theme Magical Moments in Music. This festival was a great concert for all the choirs. Becky Roose remarked on how exciting it was to be a part of the huge performance. Mr. Beckett felt he had a wonderful year and appreciated all the hard work.

The band keeps on marching

The Marching Warrior Pride had a very busy year, aside from their usual marching band contests. They went to the Gator Bowl at New Year's and marched in the half-time show. They received third place in the parade competition. While in Florida, the band visited Disney World and relaxed on the beach. Trisha Linville remarked, "The trip was really exciting." The band was directed by Mr. Mike Clark. Jenny Beezley, Julie Leedy, and Shannon Boyts were the drum majors. They kept the marching band in order and on the same beat when they were playing on the field. "It's hard work marching in parades through the summer and then marching on the football field in the fall. But I really enjoy being in the band," stated Jenny Beezley.

Orchestra performs well

Orchestra kept very busy with Mrs. Dubach and her students performing very well in several areas. The students played a variety of music, from the Messiah to pop and country. From the Messiah they played "The Trumpet Shall Sound," which consisted of strings played by the orchestra students, a vocal sung by Mr. Beckett, and a trumpet played by Mr. Clark. In March there was the Corporation Music Festival, and later in the spring they performed in the spring concert. Many members of the community enjoyed their performance during the Wander Wawasee evening. Students from the orchestra competed at the district solo and ensemble contest held at WHS. In another area, Ben Yoder was the Young Artist winner in the Elkhart County Symphony Orchestra competition. As a group and as individuals, the orchestra performed well.

Business provides skills

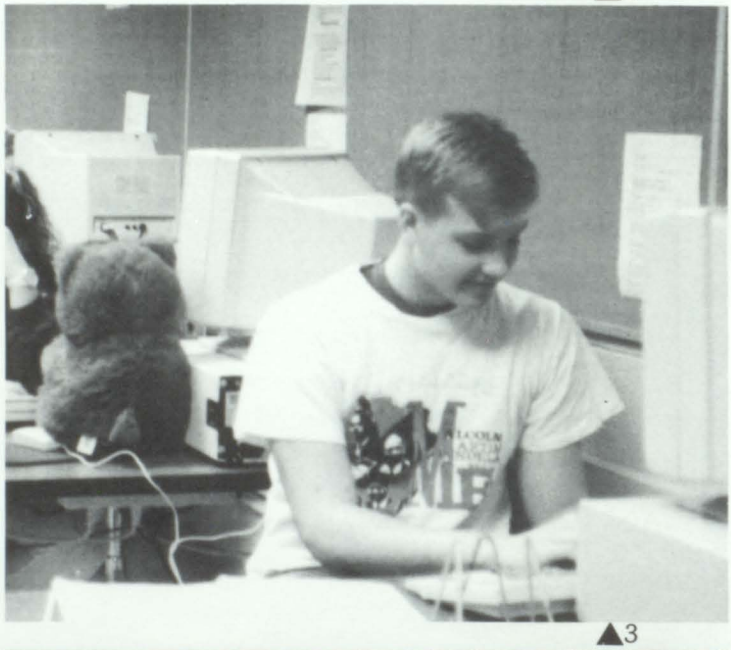

The business department prepared students for success in the business world. The intro to marketing classes started by learning about business and advertising. They had many special assignments to complete. One of the required assignments was to do two window displays. Another assignment was to design a store. A third project was to design an ad that would attract attention and tell about the store's sale. The department also offered students classes in advanced business, accounting, keyboarding, and computer applications, all necessary skills for the future.

A new curriculum

The physical education department adopted a new curriculum. The athletic training program remained the same, but all other classes were revamped and requirements were upgraded. All classes were one semester long except for physical fitness. As freshmen, students just had one required semester of PE. Basic conditioning, CPR, swimming, and triathalon were just some of the activities they covered in the class. Students were then allowed to take the second required semester whenever they wanted to in their four years of high school. It was Mrs. Peterson's 26th year and Mr. DeHart's seventh year, but Mrs. Dillbone's first full year at WHS. She replaced Mrs. Sumpter, who resigned, and taught mostly freshmen. She commented, "This is a good place because there are a lot of good options and so many different classes." Mr. Fredrick from Goshen College was a student teacher for the department during the fall. PE experienced many changes.

Math "adds" on

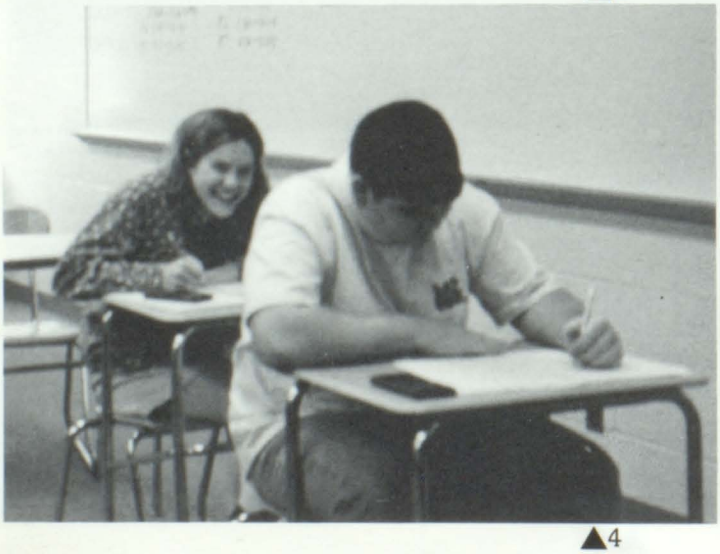

The mathematics department had an addition to their staff: Ms. Nyce, who was hired to teach tech prep math, general math, and Algebra I. While working with their students, math teachers were preparing them for future years in math. They were also preparing them for the National Math Exam, which turned out successfully. The top score went to Philippe Wampfler, with honor roll member, Cathy Lundin; and merit roll members, Ric Speakman and Luke Sawyer. Philippe Wampfler and Cathy Lundin were invited to take the American Invitational Mathematics Examination because of their scores. It was a very successful year.

English keeps growing

This year the language arts department added a new face to the crowd: Mrs. Moss, returning as a full-time teacher. The rest of the crew was still here. Mr. Robbins and Mrs. Harkleroad chaperoned ninety seniors to the Wagon Wheel Theater in Warsaw to see The Importance of Being Earnest. The ACP class of seniors also traveled to the IUSB library for a day to help with their research papers. Breesa Culver and Taia Pletcher entered the Farm Bureau Project XL competition and advanced through the first level of judging. Amanda Beer and Benjamin Yoder entered the NCTE writing contest in the fall. Overall the English classes had a very successful year.

Supportive staff keeps on supporting

Without the cooks and custodians the school would end up in chaos. The cooks had a busy year keeping up with the nutritional needs of the growing number of students. There were ten cooks at Wawasee, which increased due to student numbers. The custodians had a busy year also trying to keep up with the increasing number of students. Byron Oswald took over as head custodian after Vern White retired last year. The increased size of the school caused a number of problems for the custodians too. This led the corporation to hire more supportive staff to keep up with the larger school and number of students.

Getting to travel

When students took a foreign language they were not only getting an opportunity to learn another language, but they were also getting an opportunity to travel to that country. "Every language taught was involved in a home stay foreign language program in another country," said Mrs. Bruce, a Spanish teacher. French students went to France; Spanish students went to Costa Rica, and German students went to Germany. Every year one group of Wawasee's foreign language students traveled to a different country. Classes traveled close to home too. Mrs. Hursh's French students went to see the play Cyrano de Bergerac, and many foreign language students participated in the IPFW foreign language festival in March.

The mock election continues...

During the first semester the government and economics classes participated in the annual fall election simulation. The Democrats invited Superintendent Henry Smith to be their keynote speaker, but the Republicans felt that they didn't need an outsider to speak for them as they invited fellow Republican classmate, Clarissa DuBois, to give their key note speech. The Republican candidates, Cathy Lundin and Holly Beer, won the election by a landslide over Democrats Frank Slabaugh and Andrew Bartlett, who put in a great effort. In government, Mr. Welborn showed a video called "Threads" that showed a simulation of what would happen if an all out nuclear war ever occurred, and students wrote a reaction paper. Juniors continued to take U.S. history and sophomores took world history.

Life skills in home ec

Home economics offered a variety of classes. There were three foods classes: Foods I, II, and III. The classes had labs and made different kinds of food such as cookies, bread, lasagna, and milk shakes. Interior design was also offered. The classes designed dream homes and toured a bed and breakfast as well as many other homes in the area. Child care and development was also a popular class. They were the ones who carried around flour babies and brought little children to school one day. The class created games and played them with the kids they brought in. Family management taught teens about parenting and finances and offered a wide variety of other information on family management. The purpose of the home ec classes was to provide students with life skills relating to homes and families.

Secretaries and aides keep moving

The secretaries and aides had a fairly routine year. The most unpleasant excitement they had was from the much too occasional computer breakdown. There was also a larger student population than ever before, so the extra paperwork kept them quite busy. Some of the secretaries moved to different jobs. Mrs. Bruch transferred to the main office from the attendance office. Mrs. Holterman moved into the attendance office to replace Mrs. Bruch; she formerly was the library aide at North Webster Elementary. In addition to her guidance duties, Mrs. Bultemeier became a ninth grade advisor which she enjoyed a great deal. The nurses had a busy time in the winter during flu season. The aides were a great help this year having been given more responsibilities than ever.

Vocational keeps on working

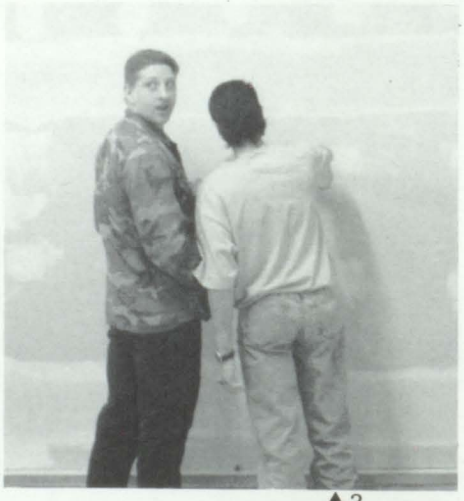

The vocational department expanded. Mr. Warren added introductory animal science to his list of classes. He also received new small engines for his small engine class. Mrs. Huber's administrative support services had three students co-oped in the afternoon with various businesses throughout the community. Senior Jennie Boyer won the local SERVISTAR/ Coast to Coast All-American Vocational Student Award. She also participated in the FBLA state contest. Mr. Waltz's building trades class built a house in the Country Cove addition. They sponsored an open house on March 24 for the public. Mr. Craig's automotive classes worked hard on learning about car engines. All in all, the vocational department was successful in teaching students valuable trades for their future.

Science improves

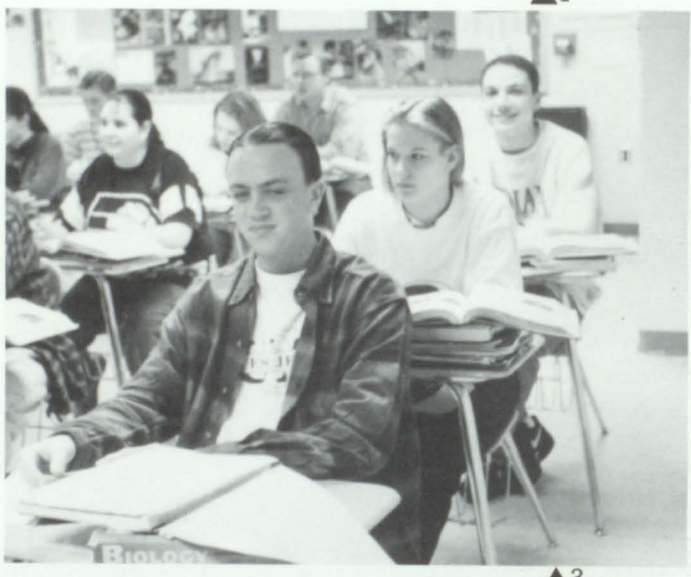

How did the science department improve? They offered a new course this year called biology tech prep. The topics they focused on were water, nutrition, plant growth and reproduction, continuity of life, and microorganisms. This course was for freshmen and sophomores. They traveled to the sewer plant in connection with their topic of water quality. Science also offered a variety of other classes such as physical science, Biology I & II, Chemistry I & II, human physiology, Physics I & II. These classes were mostly for sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The Biology II classes took a trip to the Syracuse dam to search for algae and bacteria and to the woods for wildflowers. Overall the science department kept up with the needs of students.

Industrial tech classes have fun

The industrial technology classes had a wonderful time learning the new computer technology. The CAD computer lab now had 17 personal computers, two ink blotters, one laser jet printer, and four dot matrix printers. Mr. Vitaniemi's construction design class built a model of a house with landscaping and built another house using popsicle sticks. They also built a skyscraper. The architecture class designed houses and drew floor plans on the computer. In Mr. Alford's class, Josh Cline, Brian Shoemaker, and Nate Shoemaker made a chess set. This year was fun and an expanding year for the industrial technology program.

Another great year for the LRC

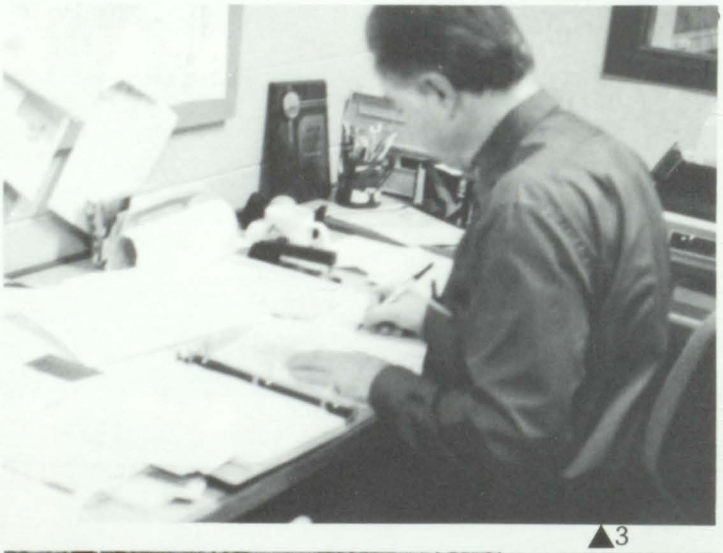

The library had another exciting year. The library started using MAS Full Text, which was made available on the computer through CD/ROM. MAS Full Text was used to research articles in magazines, providing the full text of the article on the computer screen. The audio visual area had a much more active year. Live announcements were made on the TV monitors throughout the school every morning. Jennie Boyer and Rachel Beer made the announcements on TV. The production studio also became actively involved working with classes throughout the school. They were kept especially busy with Mr. Corson's and Mr. Welborn's classes during the election simulation as the students were encouraged to use the school's growing technology for their campaigns. Economics and Spanish students also made use of the studio.

Administrative plans

The administrative team was constantly planning for the future of WHS. Mr. Fox, principal, did this by working with the site based team that was made up of students and faculty. His main daily concern was with the increasing drug activity and gangs, both negative changes at school. However, Mr. Fox appreciated the majority of students and parents because they were enjoyable to work with.

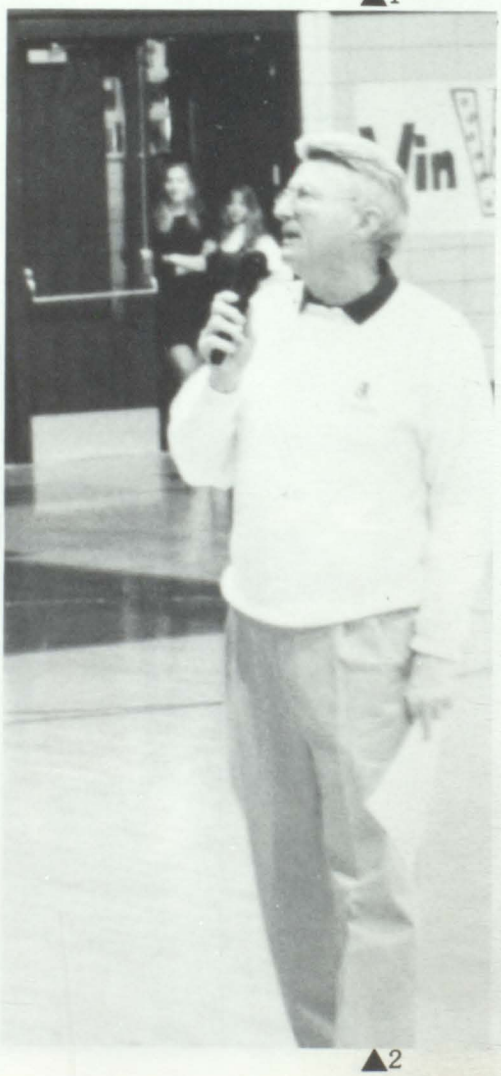

Mr. Lobsiger, vice-principal, spent most of his time working with finances. He was responsible for the weekly schedule, managing finances, and evaluating some of the faculty. He also assisted Mr. Fox in any tasks and acted on his behalf when he was absent.

Mr. Mitz, as dean of students, was most pleased that attendance had improved to a 95.2% average. The nine-day rule, he believed, improved attendance. He addressed the truancy problem and saw it as a remaining problem that needed to be worked on.

Mr. Traviolia, athletic director, said that in his area "The biggest change is Wawasee's Athletic Advisory Committee (WAAC). It was made up of coaches, community members, and students." Its purpose was to act as a liaison between the community and Wawasee athletics. However, on a personal note, Mr. Traviolia stated, "I was very proud of the winter sports season with three sectional champions out of five sports: wrestling, gymnastics, and boys' basketball."

Helping others is a tough job

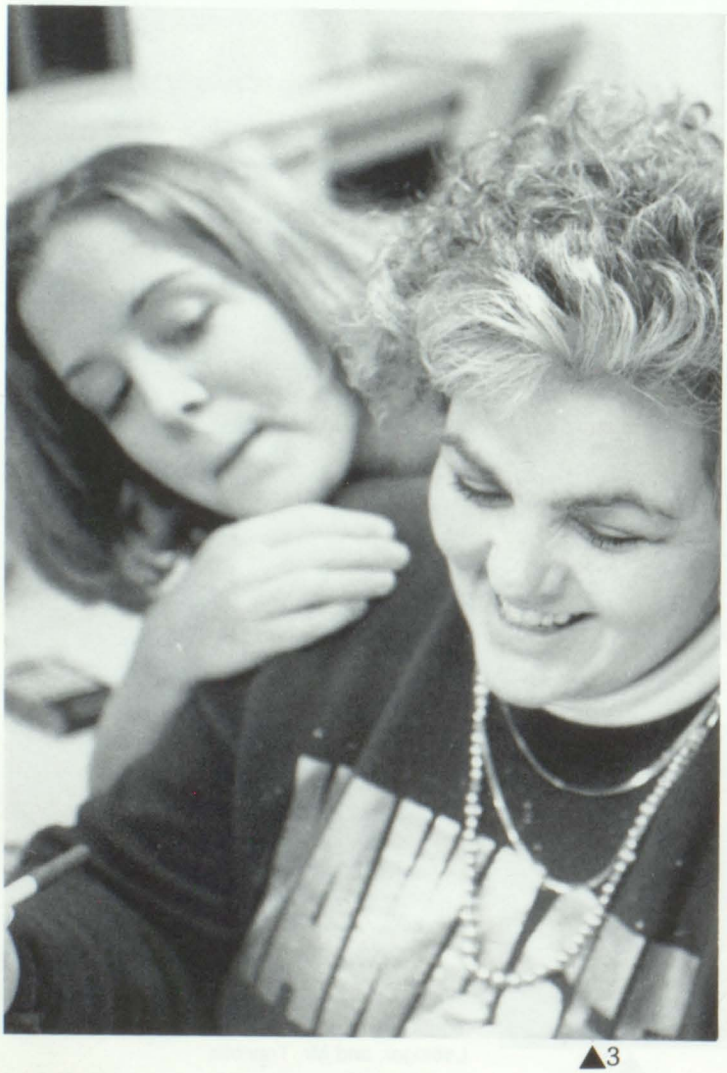

Both the guidance department and special needs spent their time helping others. Ms. Flueckiger was the new counselor, filling the spot left open with Mrs. Curtis' retirement. She was in charge of the junior class. Mr. Hunsberger worked with the sophomores. Ms. Angle was in charge of the seniors, informing them of deadlines and scholarships in homeroom on Wednesdays. She was also kept busy with senior college applications. All three counselors divided up the freshman class members. The special needs staff worked hard to increase the number of peer tutors. The students in this class helped the special needs students with their homework.

The seniors keep winning and winning

The class of '95 began their senior year with a BIG bang. They were not only busy getting ready for a BIG senior year, but were also planning to come out on top as well. Taking one month at a time, first up was the BIG homecoming week. With the theme of the Beatles, the seniors rocked their way to the top! Winning the lip sync(as this class has for the last four years), they went on to win the class skit, powder puff, and tied for first in the float competition. After the busiest week of their lives was over, it was time to move on to November. The National Convention was back to the tradition of Republicans winning the ticket. In December the seniors collected a total of $697.61 (26.1% of the total) for penny pitch. Next it was January and time to settle down and plan for spring break in April; the prom in May at Greencroft; and graduation in June.

Magic is the Night

The Senior prom was held on Saturday evening, May 20, at the Greencroft Center in Goshen. The theme Magic is the Night was chosen by the senior class earlier in the year. The music was provided by the band First Impressions who supplied some added magic to the evening. As the couples walked in, they were announced by juniors Bill Heckaman and Andrea Sombronsky. The prom sponsors Mr. Metcalf and Mrs. Leach put in many extra hours to make sure the prom was a magical night for the seniors. Towards the end of the evening Holly Beer and Chad Everts were crowned prom queen and king. The after prom was then held at the high school. At the after prom the activities included a hypnotist, a velcro wall, an open swim, basketball, volleyball and music provided by a DJ from B106. The senior parents sponsored a trip to Cedar Point on Sunday. It was a long and magical weekend that everyone would remember.

Leaving the shore

On a typically hot, steamy Sunday, June 4, 238 seniors, their family and friends filled the gymnasium for graduation exercises. The audience listened as senior class president Kathy Roose welcomed those in attendance and introduced her classmates. Once again the seniors voted to include prayer in their ceremony, and Jennie Boyer was selected to give the invocation after the class had marched in to the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance." Valedictorian Jon Ummel reminded his classmates of many shared experiences over the four preceding years, from bomb scares to basketball sectional victories. Salutatorian Natalie Rabb used the class motto "We cannot discover new oceans/Unless we have the courage/to leave the shore" to urge the graduates to discover those oceans. As the seniors graduated in their green and white robes, each girl received a yellow rose, the class flower. Music was provided by the WHS symphony orchestra, Mr. Ray Moss on the organ, varsity singers, as well as the commencement choir which sang "Like an Eagle" as the new graduates lighted candles. At the end of the program, the benediction was given by class member Trent Beer, and the graduates marched out to the front of the school for the traditional hat throwing ceremony.

Sophomores keep on going and going...

The class of 1997 had a very eventful year. Homecoming week was exciting for everyone. The sophomore mural received third place, and their lip sync won third place. Over all for the fall fling they placed second behind the seniors and juniors who tied for first. In December they helped out in the penny pitch by raising $650.81 which was 24.41 percent of the total amount raised. Freshmen keep on going and going...

The freshman class was the biggest class in the school's history. The class of 1998 raised money for their senior year by selling magazines. Their penny pitch was 37.5% of the school's total, raising $1000. The president of the class was Dina Coverstone; Karen Shipley was vice-president; Kassie Biddle was class secretary; treasurer was Jared Mahnensmith. The freshmen worked hard through Homecoming, but still ended up with a fourth place finish. These freshmen were the first class to be placed in advisory groups. They also were the first class to be required to pass the Gateway test to graduate. This group of many firsts was sure to have a successful career in high school.

The Lady Warriors are feeling up to par

The Wawasee girls' golf team finished a great season with 16 wins and 7 losses. The Warriors were led by senior Brandy Swope, junior Amy Ray, and freshman Kari Wortinger. In the past three years the girls have made tremendous progress. In 1992 their record was 3-17; in 1993 it was 11-8; and in 1994 it was 16-7. "The coaching by third year coach Bill Lantz has been outstanding. Mr. Lantz has worked with us and stressed the importance of going out there and just having fun," stated junior Amy Ray. Personal bests were turned in by junior Amy Ray with a 40; Kari Wortinger, 44; Brandy Swope, 46; and Michelle Fisher, 47. During the season Wawasee experienced some trouble when junior Elizabeth Brunner (who did a great job throughout the season) missed three matches and sectionals because of an illness. The first ever NLC match took place at McCormick Creek in Nappanee with the Wawasee girls taking first place. The Lady Warriors were led by Amy Ray's 87; Brandy Swope's 98; and Kari Wortinger's 99. The Warriors can win

"It was a successful season; we accomplished our goal to win in the NLC. We had one of the premier passing attacks in the state," stated head football coach Gene Mitz. The varsity football team had four wins, including an emotional homecoming victory over arch-rival Warsaw and won back the "W" trophy for the first time since 1987. The Warriors finished third in the NLC behind first place NorthWood and Concord. Wawasee had four players that made all-conference and they were John Turco, Chad Everts, Vince Beasley, and Scott Eisenhour. John Turco finished his final season as quarterback for the Warriors by throwing for over 2,200 yards and 28 touchdowns to be ranked second in the state in throwing. First-year players Clint and Vince Beasley did an outstanding job receiving as they were ranked among the top fifteen receivers in the state. Vince Beasley was the top receiver for the Warriors and caught fifteen touchdown passes. The defense had good showings in all of the games. Coach Mitz also stated, "This season sent a message to Wawasee football teams of the future: the Warriors can win."

The junior varsity likewise had a successful season. They were also able to win in the NLC as they provided a different crowd of Warrior fans, namely Saturday morning fans, with an outstanding year on offense and defense.

The freshman football team had an excellent season as they posted four wins. These young Warriors used a crushing defense to keep the football team in every game.

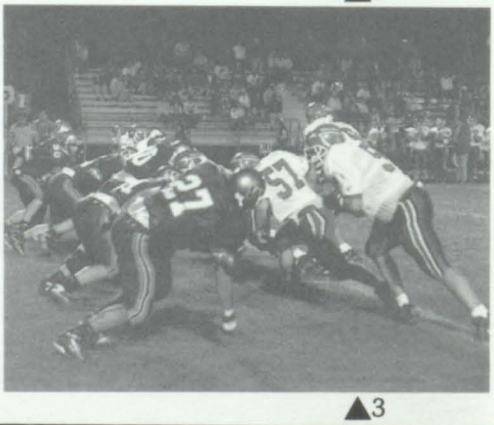

Award winners were John Turco, MVP; Jamie Corn, scout team; Scott Eisenhour, coaches' award; Keith Galloway, academic award; Keith Galloway, outstanding defensive; Rob Smith, special teams; John Turco, outstanding offensive.

Girls' swim team has record season

For the first time in Wawasee history, the lady swimmers won the NLC championship. In 1989 the swimmers were NLC co-champs with Goshen. This time Wawasee kept a good distance between Goshen and themselves through the entire meet. Wawasee won with a 300.5 and second place went to Goshen with a score of 271. Wawasee had five girls selected to the All NLC swim team: Jennifer Ganshorn, Jenny Marty, Cathy Lundin, Stacy Naugler, and Katie Turco. Junior Karen Ummel said, "We all wanted to win the NLC. Karns told us all season we could do it, and we finally did."

The swimmers were 13-1, their only loss being to the Penn Kingsman. The girls placed third at their sectional. Cathy Lundin, Jenny Marty, Stacy Naugler, Jennifer Ganshorn, Kristine Shivers, and Kassie Biddle qualified for state. Cathy Lundin placed second in the individual medley and third in the butterfly at the state meet in Indianapolis. The team had a record number of thirty-eight girls. Cathy Lundin won the high point and MVP awards; Jenny Marty, coaches' award; Allison Lambert, mental attitude; Lisa Schafer, most improved; diver Katie Turco, 110% .

A strong beginning

The Lady Warrior varsity softball team had a strong start as they held a respectable 6-1 record. They upped their record to 6-1 by winning the Wawasee Invitational, defeating Whitko 9-1 and Carroll, 10-4. In their first seven games they had key wins over Tippecanoe Valley, Columbia City, and over NLC arch-rival Warsaw. They dropped their next two games to NLC power Northridge and a very tough Plymouth squad. After these two games, they found their offense and had two very impressive wins. In the first they defeated Goshen 11-1. The following day, they began play in the Kokomo Invitational. In the first game they defeated Wabash 20-4. In the game against Wabash, Robyn Conn and Jennifer Morgan shared the pitching duties. Ten players had hits. Six of those had two hits a piece. However, they dropped the next two; they lost to Elkhart Central 4-2, and then lost to state power Western 6-4. At the midpoint of the season, the softball team had a record of 8-5.

Back and forth, good games and bad games, close matches and heartbreakers, the team experienced it all. Under the instruction of a new tennis coach, the team did exceptionally well. Dave Schwab took the girls' tennis team under his wing this season when he was offered to coach a very talented group. The tennis team got off to a great start by defeating Westview 4-1 and Lakeland 5-0. The only seniors on the team were Olivia Searfoss and Julie Leedy. The team consisted of 18 girls: two seniors, four juniors, seven sophomores, and five freshmen. By mid-season the girls had a fine start after loosing four varsity seniors last season.

What a hit!

The boys' golf team started the season slowly, but by mid-May their record was a very respectable 5-6. They were coached by Don Deck, Jack Reese and Steve Dodds. The team participated in several invitationals in late April and early May. "We had a lot of fun, but we all know that we could have played better," stated Jeff Jarrett. Jaime Hippe was a great help to the team with a personal best of one under par on a nine hole course. Jay Haugh commented, "A ball hit is a ball earned." The team practiced everyday at South Shore and held their invitational and home matches there. "You need a smooth stroke to play hard," noted Tim Wipert. Let's keep the spirit

The cheerleaders had a great deal to cheer about. It started with the football team's astounding season. It then continued into the winter as they received an invitation to cheer at the Citrus Bowl in Orlando, Florida, where they cheered in the pre-game show. While they were in Orlando, they attended a concert where Little Texas and Lee Greenwood performed. They also went to Disney World. The cheerleaders that went were Kara Singrey, Beth Boggs, Jeremy Plummer, Andrea Junghans, Leisa Church, Gina Hollar, Sharada Nethaway, Julie Glon, and Alicia Holterman. The excitement then continued into March as the basketball team clinched its first sectional title since 1982. They were able to cheer at regionals for their first time. There were five cheerleaders that received cheerleader blankets during the winter awards program. They were Beth Boggs, Leisa Church, Gina Hollar, Ashkea Judd, and Kara Singrey.

Shh...I'm fishing

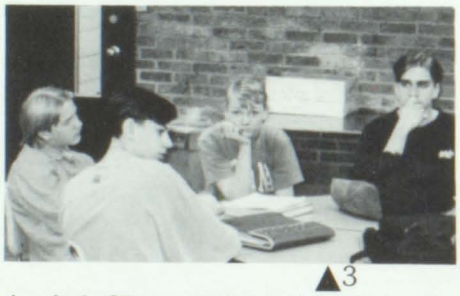

Bass fishing was a new club that caught the interest of some young men and women. The co-sponsors were Mr. Alford and Mr. Craig. On occasion, the bass fishing club invited an active bass fisherman to talk to the group and provide some demonstrations. They showed the students different skills and gave them tips on how to catch some big bass. Brandon Zartman stated, "I'm really glad they started the bass fishing club. I really love to fish, and this way I can learn and have fun at the same time." Zartman also made the comment, "I never was in a club before until bass fishing came about. I guess this club just caught my eye." Bass fishing met during homeroom and occasionally on the lake to snag some very large fish.

Even though the Bible club did not meet during homeroom, they still met at each other's houses to have fun, fellowship with each other and share their faith. Some mornings they held meetings before school. The club stressed no particular one faith, but a common belief. The meetings were fewer than usual and therefore they found it important to meet with one another to see what they had missed. Computer line sells fast

Computer club met during homeroom and once a month after school to encourage the ever increasing interest in computers. The club sold the operating line for the game Trade Wars at the cost of $10 per student. They operated the bulletin board with network school games so people could call in on the telephone line to get what they needed. Late in the year they started having problems, so they separated from the school network and created their own separate board that was open 24 hours for people to call in. Computer club officers were Steve Brunjes, president; Dusty Dunithan, vice-president; Jim Adams, secretary; Brian Schwartz, treasurer.

DECA club had a fantastic year. They competed in the district contest in January at Scottsdale Mall in South Bend. They took 21 people and placed 11 in the competition. Steve Bartels, Andrew Bartlett, Sara Hines, Cortney Horn, Tammi Schafer, and Nicole Scherer then advanced to state competition in Indianapolis. As a fund raiser the club sold milk and donuts to students in the morning. Tammi Schafer commented, "The whole year was fun, and Mr. Minton was a great influence on all of us." DECA officers were Andrew Bartlett, president; Tammi Schafer, vice-president; Crystal Barnett, treasurer; Nicole Scherer and Amber Gay, reporters.

Puttin' on a show!

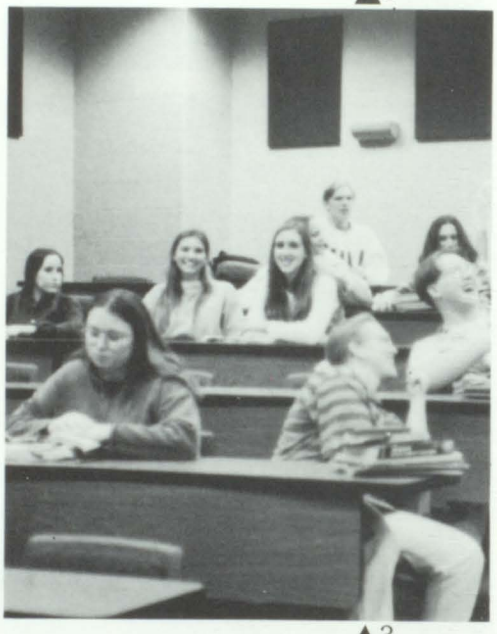

The drama club was always busy. First was the fall play. Members came to school on a Saturday and decorated the auditorium surge area as a fair. The Faith County Fair was a huge success. After that it was time to move on to the spring musical and to get the stage set up for Lil' Abner. With the two school productions out of the way, sponsor Miss Wooldridge provided a great opportunity. The drama club went on tour to North Webster Elementary performing a children's play. Senior Teresa Maresh, president of the drama club, stated, "I really enjoyed drama this year; it was also very organized which made it a lot of fun."

The new FBLA

Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) was one of two new clubs, and it provided a great year of fun and enjoyment. Mr. Murphy was the sponsor for the club; Jennie Boyer, president; Troy Wuthrich, vice-president. FBLA was a non-profit educational association of student members preparing for careers in business. The members of FBLA sold candy to raise money for their new club. They also attended a few competitions where Jennie Boyer, who also served as Indiana's FBLA state secretary for the past year, received three first place awards. Jennie also earned the right to compete at nationals during the summer. "I am really glad that WHS decided to revive FBLA; it is a really good experience for anyone interested in business," stated Jennie Boyer.

FCA is building up

Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) was slowly but surely building up. The FCA sponsors, Mr. Van Drie and Ms. Flueckiger, were working hard to get more students to join. For one they moved the meeting time. It used to be during homeroom, but they changed it to Tuesday mornings once a month. Once there are more members, the meeting time will be rescheduled to Tuesday mornings every week. FCA sponsored a few activities outside of school. A lock-in was scheduled but had to be canceled due to the unexpected boy's basketball regionals. The lock-in was reassigned to a later date. Also some members had the opportunity to attend FCA camps during the summer.

Future elves of America?

FEA (Future Educators of America) was sponsored by Mr. Iden. At the beginning of the year, the students observed teachers of their choice in the corporation for one half day. In February the members of FEA held a program for all the fourth graders called Smoking Sam. This program provided smoking education. They also had the elf program from January to May. During this time, FEA members picked teachers and secretly gave them small gifts and wrote them notes. On May 9 the elves were revealed at the Teacher's Tea. Everyone brought food and the teachers had a treasure hunt to reveal their elves' identities. The officers were Jennifer Beezley, president; Sarah Bultemeier, vice-president; Karena Zimmerman, secretary; Amy Clay, treasurer.

FFA has a very productive year

The FFA was one of the most active clubs, and its members were very busy. Some of their activities included soil judging, Envirothon, state convention, livestock judging, national convention, the slave auction, and developing the Chad Beer Memorial Scholarship. They also participated in the nationwide Food for America Program in which they provided plants for over 300 second graders. They placed well in many of the events including national runner-up in agricultural proficiency. FHA cooks up a storm

Future Homemakers of America (FHA) was a club that did not meet during homeroom. The sponsor of the club, Mrs. Leach, had her Foods I & II classes second and seventh hour as her FHA members. FHA participated in many activities. They made items for teachers, the school, and the Teen Parents Succeeding daycare center. They cooked all of the meals for the athletic sectional luncheons. The club also created all of the home economics bulletin boards and displays. Mrs. Leach was pleased with all of the assistance FHA gave her and with all that they did for the school.

FLC becomes cultured

The president of the foreign language club was a foreign exchange student from Switzerland, Philippe Wampfler. Other officers were vice-president, Annie Endicott; secretary, Variety Adams; and the volunteer position of activities director, Emily Slabaugh. Philippe Wampfler provided a great deal of information to the group about other cultures. His unique perspective gave the students in FLC a new and different way to learn about people from other countries and the languages they speak. Philippe said, "I feel a lot of Wawasee students got to know about other countries during the activities that the FLC organized." In addition, the FLC had an increase in its membership to thirty-six people.

Jazz band keeps up excitement

A very important, but often overlooked, part of each basketball game was the jazz band. The jazz band kept the crowd excited and interested in the game. The cheerleaders and fans would really miss their music. The jazz band had to play throughout the whole basketball game, belting out songs that everyone knew. Although they were kept very busy learning new music and going to basketball games, this did not even begin to cover their busy schedule. Throughout the school year the jazz band played at pep sessions and other school functions. But they also competed in many jazz band contests. At the ISSMA State Contest they received a first division rating.

Key Club helps out

The Key Club participated in many activities that helped out the community as well as the school. Some of these activities were sponsoring Market Day (a discount grocery service), helping out with the Syracuse PTO fall carnival and WHS fall open house, Valentine balloon sales, selling suckers at basketball games, changing the signboard weekly, and sponsoring a child to Riley Children's Hospital summer camp. Four representatives, Julie Glon, Karin Johnson, Taia Pletcher and Jennie Rogers went to the state convention in Columbus, Indiana. Yearbook staff meets the deadline

The yearbook staff began their year getting acquainted with layout sheets, pica rulers, and croppers. Nearly all of the first semester was spent learning the art of page layout and selling ads to area businesses. The prices of the ads went up this year because the contract price increased. The second semester was spent fulfilling deadlines. The first deadline was in February, and there were five more deadlines throughout the rest of the year. The staff chose the theme for the book: "Warriors keep on going and going and going..." and the cover which was designed by Denise Lippert in Mr. Johnson's commercial design class.

NHS keeps helping

In the fall National Honor Society (NHS) welcomed 41 members during its fall induction ceremony. They celebrated by having a hot dog roast at Pat Tracey's. The club got serious when it came to helping the community and the school. They ushered parents through the school for the fall open house. They also co-sponsored the Penny Pitch with the Key Club and delivered groceries. Some members participated in the Bowl-a-Thon for Big Brothers and Big Sisters.. They also helped with Wander Wawasee, an educational trade show. Officers were Natalie Rabb, president; Scott Metcalf, vice-president; and Tim Hess, secretary/treasurer. The sponsor was Miss Kline.

Smoke Signals is smokin'

The Smoke Signals staff had a red hot year. The newspaper itself continued to increase its page numbers on Pagemaker. There were five seniors on the staff: Ruth Craig, Trisha Linville, Staci Shreve, Philippe Wampfler, and Cory Young. Ruth Craig was the editor-in-chief and Margaret Sohl was the assistant editor. Cory Young and Staci Shreve were the head photographers. The feature writers were Ruth Craig, Mark Leinbach, Casey Stump, Philippe Wampfler, John Hursh, Zach Boren, Margaret Sohl, Ora Freeman, Jeff Mullins, Brandy Rosenquist, and Trisha Linville. The advisor was Mr. Robbins. Instead of the monthly newspaper, the staff published a magazine called The Plateau in February. Its articles covered events and people of local interest.

Winning is the ticket

The WHS speech team did a tremendous job. The team was led by their sponsor Miss Wooldridge and traveled to a variety of schools. Amanda Beer, Daniel Allen, Becky Roose and Clarissa DuBois traveled to meets at New Haven, Fort Wayne Northside, Bellmont and Fort Wayne Northrup among others. They competed in events such as extemporaneous and duo. The speech team president was Becky Roose; and the vice- president, Danielle Davis. The speech team met after hours to work long and hard on all their speeches. "It really paid off; I am very proud of all the team members this year," stated Miss Wooldridge.

SRC sponsors hardcourt for clubs

The Student Representative Council (SRC) worked very hard. Busy was SRC's middle name with the traditional responsibilities such as homecoming, fall fling, talent show, dances, Morp, and So Long Senior Week. SRC even saved the environment by recycling every Thursday morning. Hardcourt for clubs was a new event sponsored by SRC to recognize club leadership among the students. Each club nominated a king and queen candidate and the faculty voted Jennie Boyer and Aaron Scantlen to that honor. The SRC was led by president Jennie Boyer and vice-president Rachel Beer.

The Legend continues...

The 27th volume of the Wawasee Legend was 204 pages long. The Legend sold for $23 per copy. The seniors could then pay $2 extra to have their names stamped on the front of the book. The seniors also had to pay an additional $7 to have their senior pictures printed in color in the book. The yearbook staff had a contract with Herff Jones in Shawnee Mission, Kansas, for $15,858 for 500 copies. The type of paper that was used was Bordeaux 80# gloss which was cut to 8 1/2 x 11 inch pages. The binding was Smythe sewn. For the first time there was a World Yearbook that was available for purchase at the same time that yearbooks were delivered. These yearbooks covered events that had occurred throughout the world during the school year. These were sold for $1 and could be attached to the yearbook. The cover of the book was drawn by senior Denise Lippert.

There were six deadlines that had to be met with numerous pages to be sent to the publisher. The hardest of the deadlines came immediately before spring break. The sales representative was Fred Henderson, and the customer service adviser was Julie Bogart.

" I Could Take"

I could take two leaves
  and give you one.
Would that not be a kind of perfection?

But I prefer
One leaf
 torn to give you half showing

(after these years, simply) love's complexity in an act,
 the tearing and the unique edges-

one leaf (one word) from the two imperfections that match.
