STUDENT LIFE

"Life moves pretty fast. If you don't stop and look around once in a while, you could miss it."-Ferris Bueller

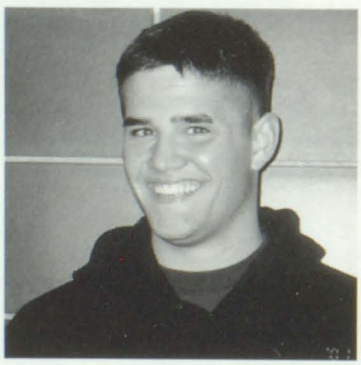

Heather Geiger: "I like the student life because of the freedom you get, and you have the opportunity to meet a lot of new people."

Libby Brown: "I like having HIT because we get to watch ESPN. I also enjoy hanging out with my friends at all the sporting events and seeing everyone so full of spirit."

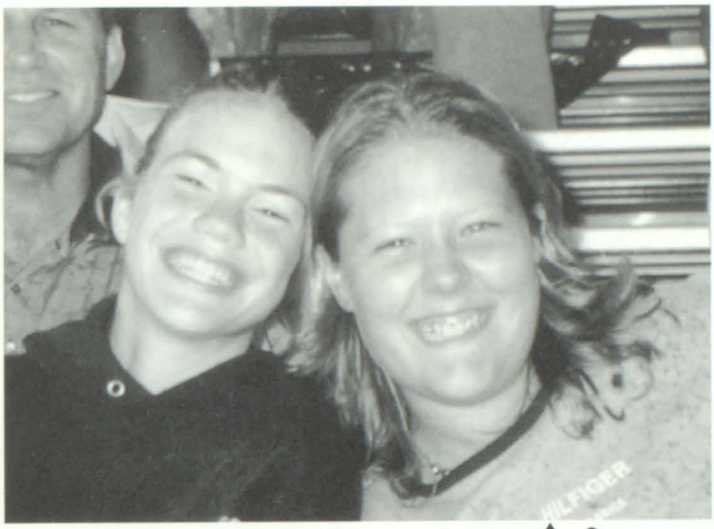

Eric Gingerich: "Student Life is terrific because of the students and teachers I have befriended over the years. I also enjoy Friday nights watching Shanna Zolman electrify the crowd."

Curtis Valentine: "When I first arrived here student life changed dramatically from middle school. I could not wait to experience all the new things high school had to offer. But as the years passed, student life became more monotonous and became like a job. It is a routine and you make it through one class at a time."

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Sobriquets

What's in a name? Quite a bit. Nicknames have been used throughout history. Some of the earliest nicknames are names like "Conan the Barbarian" or even "Honest Abe." Some may be more familiar with nicknames like "P. Diddy" for Sean Combs, "Refrigerator" for William Perry, or maybe "Sly" for Sylvester Stallone. Shoeless Joe Jackson was one of the players banned from baseball as a result of the Black Sox Scandal of 1919. Early in his career, Joe had a new pair of spikes and got blisters on his feet when he started wearing them. The next day the team was short of players, and Joe had to play. So he played without shoes and in his socks. A fan shouted, "You shoeless son of a gun," when he hit a triple. A sportswriter picked it up and began calling him "Shoeless Joe." Students at WHS have many nicknames too; some have nicknames they like and some they hate. What's in a name? Quite a bit.

HAVE YOU BEEN CHANGED?

Americans

September 11, 2001, began like any other day for students at WHS. Some of us were upset at having to take Work Keys or ISTEP testing. At around nine o'clock that morning our lives and the lives of countless others were changed forever. Two hijacked planes were flown into the World Trade Center Twin Towers. Another was flown into the side of the Pentagon. A fourth hijacked plane was headed toward Washington D.C., but the heroic people on board attacked and over threw the hijackers and saved a countless number of lives while sacrificing their own. The Twin Towers of the Trade Center collapsed a little over an hour after being hit by the planes, killing almost 300 rescue workers in the process. These men and women gave their lives trying to save their fellow Americans and they were heroes in every sense of the word. Just over 3,000 people lost their lives in the World Trade Center Towers; 189 people perished in the Pentagon attack, and 45 heroic people lost their lives while stopping yet another attack on United Airlines Flight 93. We as Americans united and stood together to fight this new war on terrorism, and must always remember the heroes that defined patriotism that day.

The students of WHS remember those who lost their lives in the attacks at a memorial service. The flag flies at half-mast. 4. The World Trade Center Twin Towers stand tall just days before the attacks, a trademark of the New York skyline. 5. A man stands beside his car that has been covered in dust and debris from the collapse of the World Trade Center. 6. The World Trade Center Twin Towers burn after the planes crash into them killing thousands of innocent people. 7. The Pentagon loses an entire section of its outer three rings in the attacks. Two rings are not damaged by the plane, but are by fire.

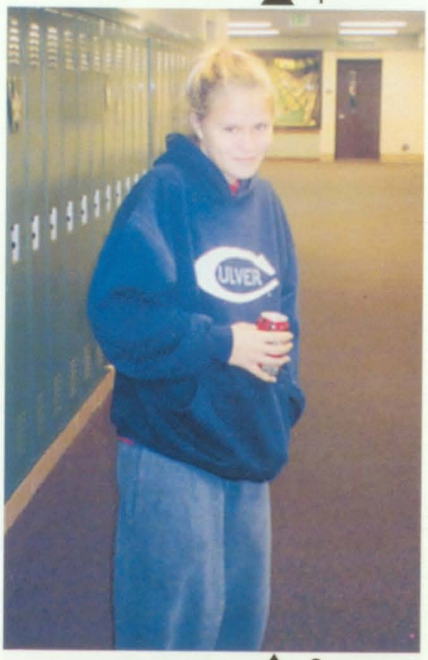

WHAT'S PLAYING AT WHS?

Alumni

The student body did an excellent job at Homecoming. Even though the date was a bit earlier, it was still successful. The theme was "Lights, Camera, Victory!" Each class had a different movie genre. The seniors were action; juniors, comedy; sophomores, drama; and the freshmen, animation. The seniors won overall taking first place in all but one event. They were followed by the juniors, freshmen, and sophomores respectively. Seniors defeated the sophomores in powderpuff, placing them first, followed by the juniors, and then freshmen. Sam Calobrace and Ryan Vallow also won the hamburger-eating contest for the seniors. The talent show was moved to the middle school due to the renovation of the auditorium. The seniors placed first in the skit followed by the sophomores and juniors; the freshmen failed to present one. The seniors also won the mural followed by the freshmen, juniors, and sophomores respectively. In the float competition the juniors placed 1st followed by the seniors, freshmen, and then sophomores. Seniors proved triumphant in the penny pitch winning by more than $80.00. Pete Wamsley and Annette Lamb were crowned Homecoming queen and king at the half time of the Wawasee vs. Elkhart Memorial game. The Warriors won the game 42-14. Members of the underclassman court were Kyle Lantz and Jessica Leach for the juniors; Alex Similton and Cassi Ellis for the sophomores; and Jordan Swain and Lindsey Best for the freshmen.

WHAT'S BETWEEN WWI & WWII?

Brainiacs

The years between the two world wars, November 11, 1918, to December 7, 1941, were the topic of study for the academic teams. The five member teams involved themselves in the subjects of math, science, social studies, fine arts, and English. Teams meet weekly with the coaches to prepare for their competitions. The meetings started in November and continued through March and worked from a study outline. The coaching staff included Mrs. Harris, math; Mrs. Sautter, science; Mrs. Holsopple, science; Mrs. Myers, social studies; Mrs. Hursh, fine arts; and Mr. Waltz, English. The fine arts team studied artists such as Grant Wood and Georgia O' Keefe. They also studied composers such as Duke Ellington and Cole Porter. The science teams studied atomic theory, technology, and synthetic materials. The math team studied topics such as logic, functions, and number bases. The English team studied short stories such as "Babylon Revisited" and "Big Two-Hearted River." The social studies teams studied politics, economics, morality and change, and internationalism. The teams had a competition at Warsaw on March 7. On March 14 they had the NLC Championships. The regional competition was held in April, and determined who would advance to state.

How do you say...? F.E.S.'s

Foreign exchange students came from all over the world to enjoy a very neat experience. Coming to the United States to live with a family they didn't know and go to a school they had never heard of could be difficult. Our seven students arrived from many places. Some students stayed all year and others only stayed half the year or even just a few months. Ana Barbosa only stayed for the first semester, while the other students stayed for the entire year. Because they were seniors, some students were studying fairly hard courses. Foreign exchange students were eligible to participate in prom and graduation. Most of them came in August and left in July or sometime after graduation. We were thankful for the families here who were letting these students stay with them while they were in the US. Without them we could not enjoy this great chance to meet people from other countries.

"There are no foreign lands. It is the traveler who is foreign."

What would Jesus do?

Jesus Freaks

The fall play was changed from a straight play to a musical due to the renovation of Wawasee's auditorium. Godspell was chosen because it was easiest to move to the middle school. It was also a musical with only twelve characters. Godspell was a musical adaptation of the Gospel according to St. Matthew. The story began at the baptism of John, played by Jesse Swain and led to the crucifixion of Jesus, Simon Beer. The other ten characters acted as disciples and reenacted parables through out the play. Directing Godspell was Mrs. Moss; Mr. Ray Moss was the musical director; Mrs. Bonner was the producer; Tara Paterson was the choreographer; and Jess Klein and Andrea Strong were the student directors. The play was presented November 8th, 9th, & 10th. Even with an unexpected glitch in the light board on Thursday night, all performances went well.

The spring musical was Rodgers and Hammerstein's famous Oklahoma! Wawasee's Fourth Wall drama department presented the musical March 14th, 15th and 16th. The show was a big success, selling out two of the three nights. Over 60 students worked on stage, backstage, building the set, applying makeup, and other details. Mrs. Moss was the director and took care of blocking and character development. Mr. Ray Moss was the music director and also played piano for the show. Mrs. Thornburg was the assistant director taking care of props, tickets and other loose ends. Mrs. Bonner was the producer for the show and was in charge of set building and costumes. There was also extensive choreography by Junior Tera Patterson. Not only did Tera become Laurey during the dream sequence, which was done on point, she also choreographed intricate ballet, tap, and partner numbers making Oklahoma a visual feast. Oklahoma! was a musical set in the Oklahoma territory in the early 1900's. It was a story of romance between more than a few characters. Curly, played by Brock Boyts, played hard to get with Laurey, Diane Jackson, but she had already earned the dangerous affection of Jud Fry, played by Andrew Wilson. Then there was Ado Annie, played by Carrie Alles, who couldn't choose between Ali Hakim, Forrest Bosenberg, or Will Parker, Joey Spiegel. Accompanied by other lovable characters such as Aunt Eller, Mr. Carnes and Ike Skidmore, played by Kelly Bryan, David McCune, and Josh Dawes respectively, this story about Oklahoma becoming a state was fun to watch.

Leaders

The administration was very busy. They were in charge of the students, making a master schedule, teachers, money, and the school's budget. They also reviewed the handbook with students. Administrators were aware of the expectations of the state and community and were responsible for carrying out those expectations. Mr. Frank was the principal. He reviewed and made sure the staff and student body were aware of the curriculum and evaluated teachers. Mr. Matz was vice-principal and was in charge of the money, scheduling of events, budget, and evaluation of the teachers. Mr. Mitz was the dean of students and was in charge the discipline of students. Mrs. Siglar was the new director of the alternative school, newly named the Wawasee Academy. Students attended class in the evenings and earned their high school credits. Mrs. Hurley was in charge of hiring officials, making sure the opponents knew where they were going and also made the sporting schedules.

The art department played a big role in various projects at school. The teachers, Cindy Bryan and Bill Eby, had more pressure on them because they had to fit some year long courses into one semester courses due to the change in curriculum. Also Mr. Eby got his first chance to teach photography. He stated, "I was enthusiastic about teaching the photography course for the first time. I was very into photography in college and even considered making it my career. This gave me the opportunity to once again pursue my interest in photography." There was also an increased interest in ceramics as an elective. Even though some students took it as a Core 40 requirement course, Mrs. Bryan said, "I am amazed at how well some of the kids do even if they aren't planning on doing art in college. I'm glad that students with other intended majors take an art class." Art was important because it served as an opportunity for students to express their creativity using a camera, paint, pencils, clay, chalk, and even crayons and markers.

Music Makers

The band started out their 2001-2002 season in late July with a two-week band camp. Although the days were long and hot, they managed to put their entire show on the field. Marching season was very successful. The band attended several invitational contests and brought home many awards. The Marching Warrior Pride even had a chance to march in the RCA Dome during half time of the Wawasee Warriors' Day at the Dome football game. The band competed at the District Marching Contest and earned a Division 1 rating, sending them to the Regional Marching Contest where they earned another Division 1 rating. As marching season ended, the concert band season kicked into high gear. A big opportunity arose for the concert band program. Mr. Clark split the large ensemble into two groups. Both groups were scheduled to attend a Concert Band Festival at Lawrence Central High School where they were to attend instructional clinics, but it was canceled due to ice. Both concert bands also competed in the ISSMA Concert contest late in the spring.

WHAT DO YOU WANT TO BE?

Blue Collar/White Collar Workers

It was a very busy year for the business, career and technical departments. Many of the class names were changed in order to comply with state standards. After a turbulent time getting students signed up for the right courses, things went much more smoothly. In the business department the teachers and administrators worked very hard to develop two new classes for the 2002-2003 school year. Those classes were travel and tourism and sports management. Mr. Springer experienced student teaching for Mrs. T. Miller during 2nd semester. More emphasis was placed on web page design in the computer related classes. Extra curricular opportunities were still available to students through the DECA program and FBLA club. In the career department I.C.E. was continuing to add to its offerings under the guidance of Mr. Murphy.

How Does That Sound?

Future Broadway Stars

Mixed and concert choirs had a blast learning a lot about music. The choirs concentrated on learning to read music and improving vocal technique by practicing exercises daily. They performed at many events including the Christmas Concert, Corporation Music Festival, and Pop Show. In the spring, choir students spent time learning Suzanne Schwartz's and Brandon Magid's choreography for the Pop Show. Choir students had the privilege of going to New York City over spring break. They performed the songs "Sounds of Hope," "God Bless the USA," and "Amazing Grace" outside Lincoln Center. The choirs loved singing and dancing even though they had a busy schedule and the choreography could get tough at times.

WHAT ARE YOU MAKING?

Homemakers

Family and consumer science was more than just food. Students learned strategies used in everyday life. Nutrition and Wellness I and II were classes in which students enjoyed labs, eating, learning equipment, nutrition, and energy. Child development included a real baby project, which was when students took home baby dolls that cried and acted like real babies. Child visitation, in which students were able to bring in a child for a day, also developed games and learned child safety. Interior design was a class on developing a dream home and also visiting homes in the area for decorating ideas. Another fun class available to students was textiles. Photo frames and albums, stuffed bears and clothing pieces were some of the items students made.

WHAT DID YOU SAY?

Foreigners

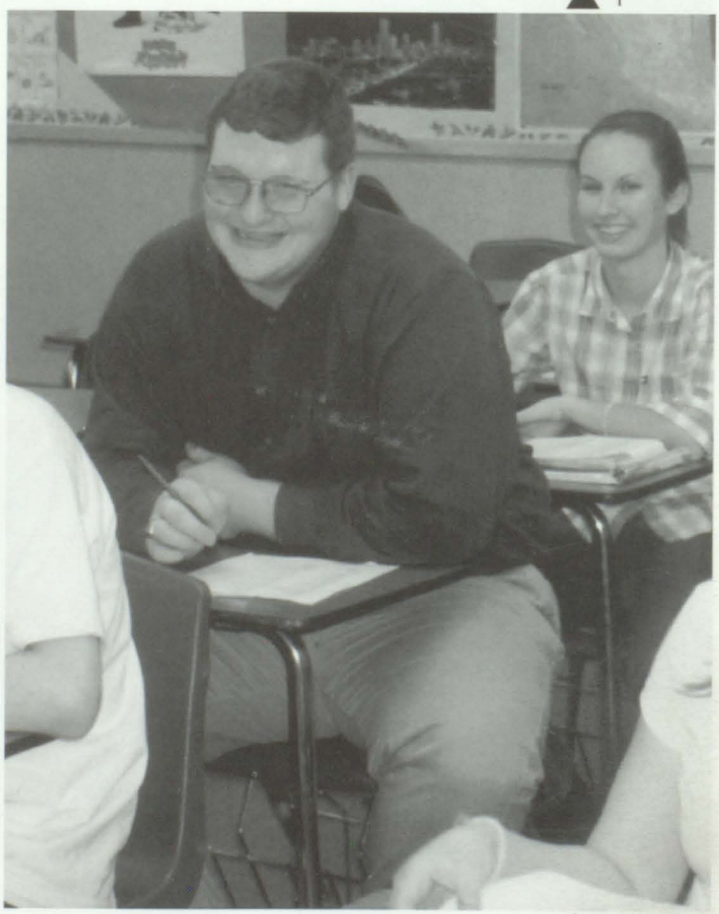

The foreign language department had a great year. They continued to use the TPR-storytelling method, which helped students learn more by focusing on speaking and listening skills. Teachers from other schools came to observe the department because it was known for being an innovative and outstanding language department. Due to the September 11th attacks, the planned trips to Italy and France were cancelled. However, the German exchange program was active. Eighteen German students visited Wawasee during March. Three Wawasee students also went to visit Germany in June. The usual Valentine fundraiser earned money for the department again. Students could send chocolate bars to other students with messages. Ms. Neil, a Spanish teacher, was added to the foreign language department.

WHERE DO YOU WANT TO GO?

Counselors

The guidance office had a great deal to do with the students at Wawasee High School in many ways. They helped students sign up for next year's classes and schedules. The guidance counselors were there to answer any questions the students might have about their classes, college, college courses, graduation, SAT, ACT, and ISTEP tests. Not only did the counselors help the students with their academic life, they also helped guide students when they were having any personal problems. Each of the guidance counselors had a certain portion of each class that he/she was responsible for. The guidance office put together junior and senior meetings during the school year. They also helped find and give information on college scholarships for students.

WHAT'S TECHNOLOGY?

Machinists

The industrial tech department was more than just wood shop. Students were able to take design process also know as drafting. In this class students learned how to sketch. Communication systems introduced students to how a message was sent and received. In this class students used computer graphics, PowerPoint, video cameras, and video editing machines. Construction systems began by showing students the proper and safe techniques for using hand and machine tools. This hands-on course covered topics ranging from wood joinery to finishing techniques. Manufacturing systems covered the process of mass production. Students understood the process by designing, prototyping and producing a small project. In computer aided design (CAD) students learned how to draw and design using the same technology many industries used. Communication process was a continuation of the exploration of how people communicated. Construction process was an in-depth class built upon previously gain knowledge. Students anticipated building scale models of houses and/or buildings. Manufacturing process explored how raw materials were transformed into usable goods. Architectural design took an extensive look into how to design and built houses. Fundamentals of engineering also looked at how buildings, houses and other structures were built.

WHAT ARE YOU READING?

Bookworms

The language arts department had an exciting year. They had the responsibility of adopting new textbooks. Also, to improve vocabulary skills, each teacher picked a different word each week that may not be used in every day conversation. By students learning a new word and using it, they could improve their vocabulary as well as prepare for tests such as the SAT's. Another element that was added to improve learning was reading time. Everyday the whole school took fourteen minutes to read, and that did not mean homework. Grades nine and ten already had extended reading time, but the general time was added for the entire school so that everyone could benefit. The language arts department also had two student teachers that taught along side Mrs. Miller and Mr. Waltz, Ms. Dittenber and Ms. Posthuma, respectively.

Could you please be quiet?

Bibliophiles

The Learning Resource Center had many changes occur. Mrs. Kiefer and Mr. Guinther were awarded a Recreational Reading Grant from the state of Indiana for about $3200. They had to have used the money by June 1, 2002. This grant allowed them to purchase more fiction books, which is good for the Accelerated Reading program kicking off at the start of the 2002-2003 school year for all students at Wawasee High School. The fiction books that they purchased were catalogued, so if a book interested a student, he could search for it. The library also made use of two new digital cameras. They had the cameras in 2001, but just this year they became more popular with the teachers to use with their classes. The LRC also had a new scanner that allowed users to scan graphics and pictures. Programs available for this were Adobe Photoshop and Word 2000. In March the TV production staff was able to move into a new studio. This allowed the staff to house the equipment that was bought last year. Instead of one large room, like in the old studio, the new studio had four separate rooms and one office, all with soundproof walls. Students and production studio staff were able to do more things at once. Also they got a new lighting grid, which is a panel of lights on the ceiling of the recording room. This gave a more professional looking appearance to morning announcements and videos that were recorded in that room. Mrs. White stated that she liked the new studio a great deal more because there was more space for her and the staff to get multiple projects completed at once.

Are you mathletic?

Number Munchers

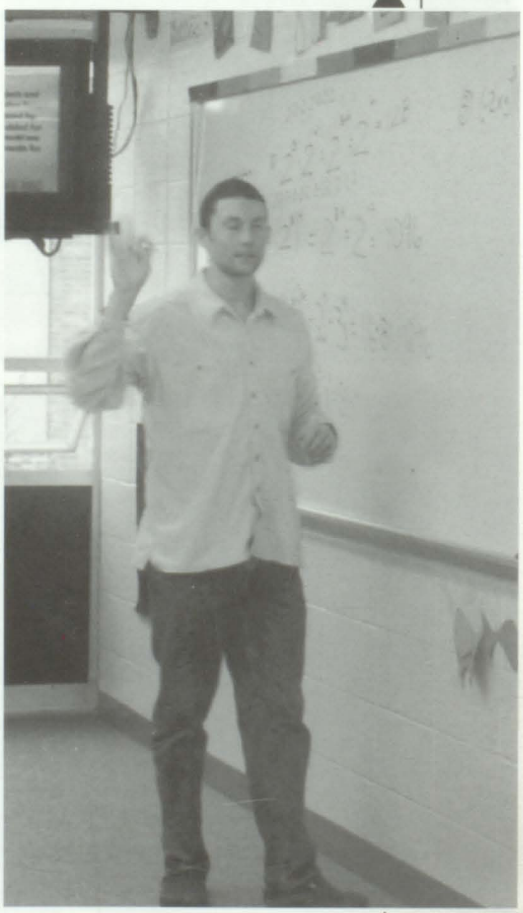

The mathematics department had another great year teaching students in all grades different levels of math. They continued to work on aligning all the curriculum and assessments to be on target with state standards which are constantly changing. They looked at instructional methods to update and upgrade opportunities for students. For example, the Advanced Placement Calculus class taught according to the reform calculus model. Within this style, topics were integrated throughout the course rather than taught as separate sections of curriculum. This would help the AP students continue to do well in national testing. The mathematics department was also very proud of the success of the math Academic Super Bowl team. Under the leadership of Mrs. Harris, they did well in preliminary competition after taking the top spot in the state last spring.

WHAT'S NEW?

Journalists

The Wawasee High School newspaper Smoke Signals was printed at the Farmer's Exchange in New Paris. Staff members used Adobe PageMaker to layout the pages of the paper. Members of the newspaper staff worked constantly to meet deadlines. Also, the Smoke Signals staff published a student-oriented magazine, Fanning the Flame. Included in the magazine were poems, stories, and pictures of pottery and artwork by Wawasee High School students. The adviser of Smoke Signals and Fanning the Flame was Mr. Waltz. Smoke Signals' chief editor was Katie Sabones, and Brock Boyts was the cartoonist. Katie also interned at The Mail-Journal in Milford where she gained a great deal of experience in bringing together a newspaper and used that knowledge to improve the newspaper at Wawasee.

How May I Help You?

Helpers

The office personnel had a huge impact on Wawasee High School. The nurse helped the students and advised them in their health care. The office aides assisted the secretaries and got to experience what it was like to work in an office environment. The secretaries kept the office in order and were very important. Mrs. Byrd was the bookkeeper for the school. She counted all the money for fundraisers and lunches. She sent out book fee bills and did all the bookkeeping for the high school. She also ordered all the school's supplies. Mrs. Bultemeier was Mr. Frank's secretary and made arrangements for the Academic Hall of Fame Banquet, as well as drivers' ed and anything that might have to deal with driver ed classes and grades. Mrs. Bruch was in charge of answering phones, keeping messages, typing up daily and weekly absence reports, assigning and keeping track of the lockers, business forms and work permits. Mrs. Judy and Mrs. Thomas processed grades, worked on the master schedule, updated transcripts, and kept track of the school records. They also were in charge of enrolling and withdrawling students and keeping track of the ISTEP testing paperwork. Mrs. Henderson was in charge of keeping attendance records and was secretary for Mr. Mitz as well. Mrs. Hutchinson was the athletic secretary and handled all the paperwork for the athletic teams.

Musicians

The orchestra had three main concerts during the school year. The first was their Christmas music program in which they played along with the choir. The second concert was the Corporation Music Festival. The festival was a culmination of the elementary schools', middle schools', and high schools' achievement for the year. The orchestra wrapped another great year in May when they performed their annual Spring Concert. Several of the students competed in the ISSMA competition in February. Sarah Craig received a first place state rating for the viola. Also Kelly Bryan tried out, was accepted, and received a scholarship at Ball State University in their music program. The orchestra graduated six seniors. Those seniors were Kelly Bryan, Rick Bowerman, Steven Hanford, Ashley Bell, Andrea Sands, and Katie Doherty. Mrs. Dubach was the conductor of the orchestra.

Physical education was an important part of high school. Without it students were not eligible to graduate. It was a fun and easy way to stay active. Students could take this class in the spring and/or fall. Advanced classes were also optional other than simply gym class. Students could take PE all four years of high school. Seniors could also take a class and become a senior leader. Student seniors helped out with attendance, leading exercises, and keeping students in line. The summer of 2001 the school went through some re-construction. The gymnasium annex was one of the facilities that was fixed. They painted the walls, redid the ceiling, and added new lights. With these new additions students could enjoy the PE annex for many more years to come.

Mad Scientists

The science department enjoyed another successful year. Courses that students had the opportunity to take in the department were chemistry, Biology I and II, chem/phys, human physiology and physics. Mr. Nguyen joined the teaching staff in the department and taught chemistry. Students in Mr. Kieper's human physiology class enjoyed learning about the human body by dissecting baby pigs periodically throughout the year. In biology students learned about how living things interact with one another. Freshman students got an introduction into the world of science in the chem/phys class, gaining basic knowledge in both areas.

The Performers

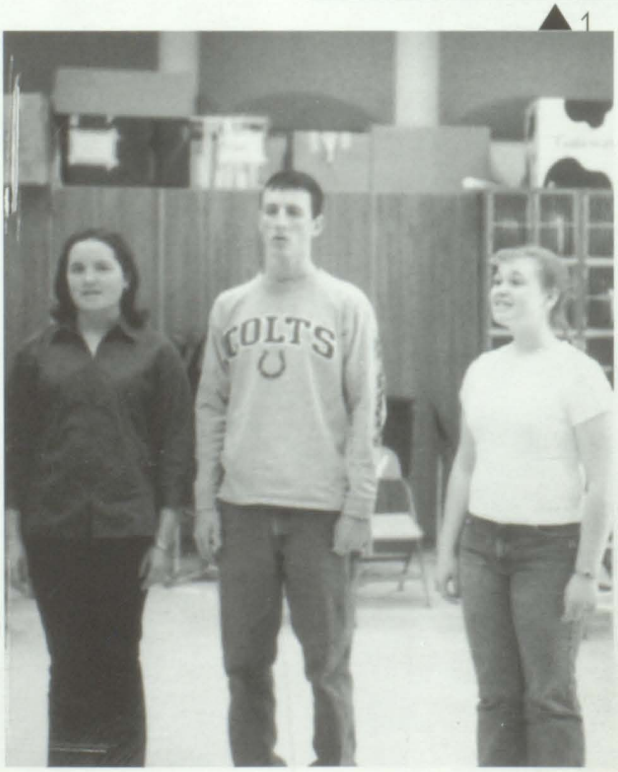

Dream Company and Show Choir had a busy but fun schedule. Both choirs performed in the annual Christmas Concert. During the winter, Show Choir attended the ISSMA contest held at Wayne High School. They received a first at the district level allowing them to advance on to the state contest held in Indianapolis. Both choirs enjoyed performing in the Corporation Music Festival where they showed their talent to the community. The choirs' last big performance, the Pop Show, was held in the spring. The theme was Number One Hits. The show consisted of a huge opening where all of the choirs sang and danced, followed by the groups' acts as well as solo and specialty acts. Over spring break one of the highlights for the choirs was their trip to New York City. Several choir students went to the Big Apple to have the once in a lifetime opportunity to sing acappella at Lincoln Center. While they were in the city they enjoyed a Broadway show, an opera, and of course some sightseeing and shopping. Show Choir and Dream Company had a great year filled with long lasting memories.

How's your History?

History Buffs

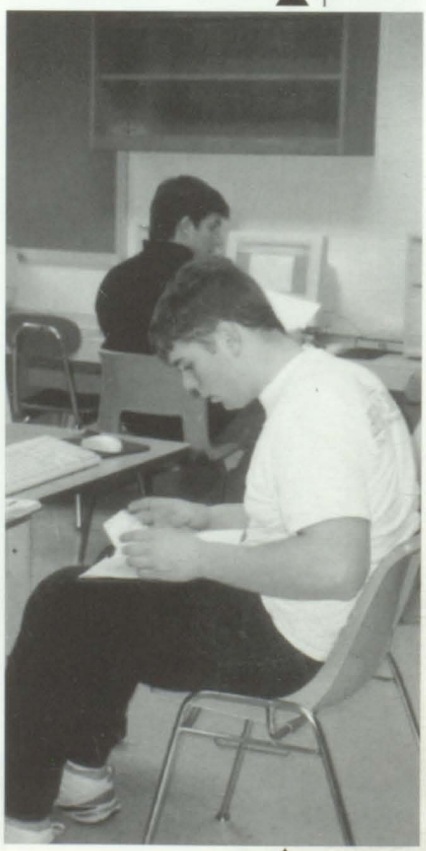

The social science department consisted of all history, government, economic, world civilization, sociology, and psychology classes. This department really took time out to analyze and discuss with the students the significance of the September 11th tragedy. The students were taught that this was the first time in our nation's history that it had been attacked in this way and at this magnitude. The students in government learned how our government was dealing with the problems since the attacks. Economics students were taught how the attacks affected our nation financially. Lastly in the world civilization students were shown where the fight on terrorism was taking place and where it might spread. All this was done in addition to regular class work and lectures.

WHO DOES THE COOKING & CLEANING?

Caretakers

The custodians at Wawasee did an excellent job maintaining the school by doing repairs, changing light bulbs, and cleaning the restrooms every day. They helped out with remodeling the auditorium and after every sporting event they were there to clean up. They planned on changing the girls' varsity locker room by putting in a new floor, new plumbing, new individual showers, and new lockers. If it went well, they were going to do the same thing for the guys' varsity lockers. At the beginning of the year, Byron Oswald's staff helped get Milford Elementary and Syracuse Elementary working and ready for the kids. They also had to help out at the North Webster Elementary by bringing in the new desks, cabinets, and supplies. They worked seven days a week on the project to make sure they got it done. At the end of the year they had to clean out every locker, sweep every room, and make sure everything in the school was up to date and working. The cooking staff at Wawasee High School consisted of 11 cooks that came in at six, seven, eight, and eleven o'clock. They had to abide by health rules and were inspected about three times a year, twice by the county and once by the state. The government controlled how much food each person should have such as the amount of fruit and vegetables. The head cook was in charge of making the lunch menu. The cooks really enjoyed the students.

Want your Picture Taken?

Croppers

There were ten members on the yearbook staff. They started out the year by selling ads to different businesses to raise money to keep the price of the yearbook at $28.00. Next they had to decide on a theme for the yearbook, and it was "What's In A Name." This was chosen because of the cover. A company in California designed the cover by putting the names of everyone in the school into the shape of an Indian. Dave Butler's design of an Indian head was used. The yearbook staff worked hard to get their layouts and spreads done by deadline. They had six deadlines to work around. Staff members took pictures of all school activities. There were two photographers, Carrie Alles and Stacey VanLue. They had to make sure everyone had their pictures and they provided the quotes for everyone to use on each spread. The job of the yearbook staff was to design the cover, select a theme, and decide what goes where on each page.

True Artists

The art club was once again sponsored by Mr. Eby and Mrs. Bryan. The president was Jesse Swain and the vice president was Sarah Snavely. The art club filled the year with many creative activities for students to participate in. They carved pumpkins in October for Halloween. They also had a Christmas party in December, which was open to anyone. They played games and received prizes! They also helped with the Christmas party SRC held for the Lifeline children. Club members led crafts such as beaded necklaces, painted birdhouses and they played games. Then in January they took a train to Chicago to visit the Art Institute. They spent the day shopping and enjoying the different pieces of art in the Institute. Finally they helped set up and assist with the art show in May.

"Business, that's easily defined- it's other people's money."
- Peter F. Drucker

DECA had a busy year. Mr. Schutz was the DECA advisor. Tyler Bell was president, while Nate Edgington and Scott Stuck were co vice-presidents. DECA had many fundraisers. They sold gift certificates at Elder-Beerman, and they had a bowl-a-thon. DECA's big fundraiser came when members collected donations for helping with parking at the home cooking show at Syracuse Elementary School, and raised $500. Members competed locally at South Bend where they had five first place finishers. Then at the state competition in Indianapolis, Greg Wong placed fourth in sales demonstration. The team of Nate Edgington and Tyler Bell placed fifth in financial services. Abbigail Webb placed second in business service marketing and then qualified for national competition in Salt Lake City during April 20-24. Scott Stuck received a medal for 90% competency for retail merchandising.

WHAT IS DRAMA?

4th Wall

▲1

The drama club was involved in many different activities. At the beginning of the year they held the data match. Any student who wanted to participate filled out a card in homeroom containing information about himself or herself. A computer paired students with fellow students in school based on the questions they answered. Drama members also helped out with both musicals doing concessions and/or ushering. One act plays and the academy awards were their spring activities. The president was Kelly Bryan; vice-president, Josh Dawes; treasurer, Brandon Magid; secretary, Brock Boyts; publicist, Jessica Klein; and the executive clerks were Cait Thornburg, Regg Beer, Lydia Shoemaker and Tera Patterson.

Tomorrow's Teachers

The Future Educators of America Club (FEA) had another exciting year. Mr. Iden was the club's advisor. The FEA's major activity was Observation Day. For the first year they got to take a full day off of school to go to the elementary schools or the middle schools to be a teacher's aide. The students worked with kids all day. They tried to get a feel for what teaching was really like so they could decide if this was something they wanted to pursue. The FEA also came up with many working ideas for the years to come. Those ideas included adopting a child, starting a secret pen pal program with teachers, and informal social gatherings for teachers and students to improve teacher-student relationships. The president was Jodi Richcreek; vice president, Jessica Evilsizor; treasurer, Brandon Magid; secretary, Carrie Becker.

Agricultural Judges

"Let us not forget that the cultivation of the earth is the most important labor of man. When tillage begins, other arts will follow. The farmers, therefore, are the founders of civilization."
-Daniel Webster

The Future Farmers of America were involved in quite a lot. Events that the members participated in, for example, were dairy judging; livestock judging which included pigs, sheep, and beef; horse judging; horticulture; and soil judging. Annually they had a district contest which was a leadership contest. Winners from that competition were eligible to move on to state. The SAE, the Supervised Agriculture Experience, was a large project for leaders of FFA. It involved filling out a proficiency paper over what they had accomplished. The FFA also was involved in charity activities such as Christmas for Children and Food for America. At the Food for America members had a tractor show, animals for observing, and they did agricultural demonstrations. The sponsor of FFA was Mr. Warren. The president was Shanna Krull and the vice-president was Kristi Schlipf. Katie Darr was secretary; Marc Roberts was the treasurer; Valerie Mock was the reporter; and Heidi Shock was the sentinal.

Thespians

▲1

The International Thespian Society was an honor society for actors and actresses who participated in enough hours of theatre to be invited to join. This is the only organization that honors high school students for honorable theatre work. Students gained eligibility by taking part in two major productions, acquiring ten points, according to the official point system, and participating in a total of 100 hours of work for the theatre. Students earned points for everything they did on or backstage and were awarded honors for their level of commitment. On May 9, before their yearly Academy Award Ceremony at Oakwood, new members received an invitation. The sponsor of the club was Mrs. Bonner, and the president was Kelly Bryan. Kelly participated in almost every portion of the organization that earned her points. Throughout the year, posted on the bulletin board outside Mrs. Bonner's room, was news about most recent events for the society.

Musicians

"A jazz musician is a juggler who uses harmonies instead of oranges."
-Benny Green

The Jazz Band played at most home basketball games for both girls and boys. They did a fantastic job of pumping up the crowd and players alike at the games. They performed songs during warm-ups, timeouts, and during the actual game. They often provided the crowd with the National Anthem before the game also. The band went to several music contests. At the competitions they often placed higher than other area pep bands proving once again how talented they were. Director Mr. Clark led the Jazz Band. The jazz band practiced for games on their own free time, often coming in at 6:30 before school to work on their numbers. They brought excitement and a different angle to the basketball season.

The National Honor Society was made up of seniors and juniors from Wawasee High School that had a GPA of 9.5. Mrs. Martin was the sponsor of NHS. The NHS helped with the penny pitch and they tutored elementary and high school students in need. They completed five total hours of service and they even cleaned up around the school. The president was Monica Wilson. The vice-president was Luke Speakman, and the secretary was Kelly Bryan. Those three students also helped with the ceremony in which the juniors were inducted into the NHS. The National Honor Society was made up of students with not only a 9.5 grade point average, but also good character, leadership, and good service records.

The Student Representative Council was very successful. They sponsored a variety of activities such as the winter dance which they decorated for and provided refreshments. They collected and recycled paper for the high school in all of the class rooms. They were in charge of all activities at homecoming, including the decorations, fun events, and all things that made homecoming week a blast. The SRC helped collect and count money for the penny pitch during homecoming. They helped under privileged children at Christmas by having a Christmas party for them. SRC also decorated the high school during Christmas. Finally SRC organized so-long senior week. They had an emergency fund that helped families in need throughout the community. The president of SRC was Peter Wamsley and the vice-president was Caitlin Thornburg.

The Lady Warrior golf team had a successful season with a record of 11-14 in the conference matches. The team captains were Ashley Bell and Carrie Alles. At the beginning of the season, all five of the varsity players were in Europe, therefore making it hard for the team to win any matches. Later in the season the team accomplished a huge win against Goshen who had been undefeated. The girls were coached by Scott DeHart, who had been the coach for the past three years. He commented, "We had a really good season and the girls worked really hard." The team placed fifth in the NLC match. Carrie Alles placed thirteenth overall and Ashley Bell and Rebecca Stoelting received an honorable mention. In the sectional match the team placed fifth. The award winners were Carrie Alles, putting award; Carrie Alles, mental attitude; Ashley Bell, MVP; Rebecca Stoelting, most improved.

The Wawasee boys' cross country team had another excellent season although they did lose their first NLC meet in four years to 16th ranked Northridge. The team started out the season ranked 10th in the state. The team had a lot to be proud of winning Hokum Karum, sectionals, placing 3rd in regionals, and getting 5th out of 30 teams at the West Noble invitational. The team was carried by a group of strong underclassmen starting with Flaco Perales, Ryan Stichter, Luke Stoffel, Brian Stutzman, Matt Dunithan, Cris Smeltzer, Eric Gingerich, Austin Gerber, and David Slabaugh, and one senior: Curtis Farrell. The team won sectionals again for the fourth year in a row by beating Northridge. They placed third in regionals and eighth at semi-state. Flaco placed third at semi-state, tying the school record of 15:45, making him eligible to run at state where he placed 36th. Award winners were Flaco Perales, MVP; Flaco Perales, low point award; Ryan Stichter, low point runner up; David Slabaugh, coach's award; Austin Gerber, coach's award; Luke Stoffel, 3-D award.

The Lady Warrior cross-country team finished a successful season with a 2-6 record. In August the girls started off their season attending a running camp at Brown County. The team captains were Brittany Winchester and Meghan Lantz. Sophomore Brittany Winchester said, "We put forth a lot of effort, and by the way, the girls won the talent show at the running camp!" Brittany was unable to finish the season because of medical reasons. The team placed fifth at sectionals to advance on to the regional meet placing eighth. Rachel Stichter, a freshman, was undefeated until the semi-state meet where she ended up placing second. Then at the state meet in Bloomington, Rachel came in seventh out of 164 runners. Meghan Lantz, sophomore, commented on the season by saying, "We are going to make it to state in two years, and we are fast!" The seven girls were coached by Grace Stichter and managed by Amy and Emily Stoffel. The award winners were Rachel Stichter, MVP; Rachel Stichter, low point award; Jessica Lundgren, low point runner up award; Meghan Lantz, coach's award.

The Wawasee Warrior baseball team enjoyed another successful year. Captains Scott Beasley and Brent Doty, along with a strong core of seniors, led the team. They all worked hard in the off season to improve their games. This included playing summer ball, working out as a team, and lifting weights. They also started coming in before school to hit and throw during the winter. When the season finally got underway, the team took their annual trip to Louisville, Kentucky, for a tournament. This took place during spring break. The team had big games early in the season against NorthWood and Whitko and they won both games. The team also looked forward to the battle with NLC conference rivals Warsaw and the second ranked team in the state the Plymouth Rockies.

Girl's varsity and JV tennis teams experienced a rewarding season. The new head coach was Cindy Peterson assisted by Mr. McDowell. The team had a total of two freshmen, one sophomore, and four juniors. There were three returning letter winners doubles players Ashley Ganz, and Cara Windle; and number one singles player Kate Murphy. The team was young with no senior members. The tennis team was busy with a lot of matches and practices Monday through Friday. Both varsity and JV attended one tournament and the sectional, as well as 14 regular season matches. Managers Twilight Wolfinger, Thomas Taylor, Matt Kubacki, and Tyler Ort helped out by keeping the team organized. Although the tennis team had a fun season, they stayed focused and improved their game mentally as well as physically.

The Wawasee boys' track team was ranked 22nd in pre-season polls. They were led by head coach Scott Lancaster. The team began the season by traveling to Culver where they competed well in a non-scoring meet. The Warriors then traveled to Notre Dame where they placed 10th as a team. The team had two meets cancelled before spring break, and therefore had a difficult time at their first outdoor meet losing to both NorthWood and Elkhart Memorial. They had a much better meet at the Northside Relays where they finished 4th. The team then hosted a very tough Warsaw Tiger track team. The meet came down to the last race where Warsaw barely edged the Warriors. The Warriors had many great performances as many of their athletes stepped it up. Their next meet was at the Goshen Relays where they placed 18th as a team. They then traveled to Northridge and beat an up and coming Northridge team, as well as the Goshen track team. They then defeated the Mishawaka Marion track team to even their record at 3-3 as of the end of April.

The cheerleaders did an awesome job encouraging the sports teams. They started practicing during the summer when they attended a cheerleading camp at Purdue University. There they practiced perfecting their cheers, stunts, and dances. For the second year the girls got to pick if they wanted to cheer for one or two seasons. This helped girls that wanted to be in a fall or winter sport, but also wanted to be in cheerleading. During the fall the freshman, JV, and varsity squads hosted the second cheerleading competition at Wawasee. Freshmen placed second and the JV/Varsity squad placed third. Most valuable cheerleader was Caroline Mahnensmith. The JV award was given to Jaime Petro, and the freshman award went to Heather Geiger. All squads did an excellent job.

SENIORS

"True terror is to wake up one morning and discover that your high school class is running the country"-Kurt Vonnegut

BJ Simpson: "I enjoy being able to do stuff with my friends. I enjoy being able to wear my moccasins and not care what other people think. I am also proud to be an American."

Jessica Klein: "This senior year has been really good. I have had so much fun this year being in drama club. If only Pre-Calculus was a little bit easier, this year would be awesome."

Steven Hanford: "I like having influence over the underclassmen."

Debbie Coldren: "It is nice to have a laid back year. This is definitely a good year to be a role model in the school because of the recent tragedies. It is nice to step forward and take a leadership position here."

Class of 2002

WHERE DO WE GO NEXT?

Chiefs

The senior class had an outstanding year. The year was filled with many unforgettable memories, some good, like graduation, homecoming, prom; and some not so good, like the September 11th attacks and the never ending construction that took place inside the building. One of the things that truly made the senior class unique was its group of leaders. The student body president and vice-president were Pete Wamsley and Cait Thornburg, respectively, whose work and dedication to the school often went unnoticed. The senior class president was Lucas Speakman and the vice-president was Mike Weiss. The senior class itself also won many awards and accolades. The seniors won every homecoming event except for its second place in the float contest. On May 31st the seniors ended their career at Wawasee High School at the graduation ceremony.

How was your stroll?

Shakers

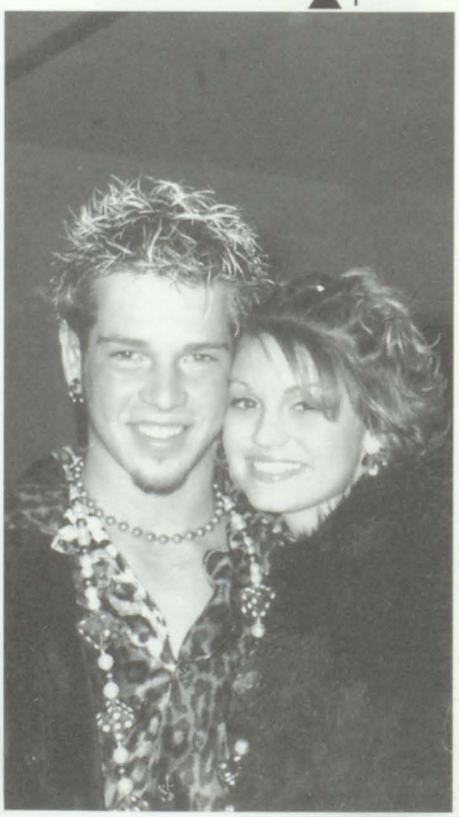

The Senior Prom was held on May 18 at the Greencroft Retirement Center in Goshen. The theme was "A Midnight Stroll." Kari Kuhn was senior prom chairperson, with Katrina Schumm and Angie Weybright in charge of the walkway and hallway decorations, and Annette Lamb in charge of the royal seating area. Mrs. Oswald, Mrs. Thornburg, and Mr. Metcalf were the faculty advisors. Carrissa Bennett and Tyler Bell were crowned prom Queen and King. The weather was freezing, but that didn't stop everyone from having a good time. The music was great; the DJ was spectacular; and the night turned out to be a total blast. After-prom was held at Wawasee High School in the Annex Gym. It was from 1:00-4:00 AM. The hypnotist came to after-prom from 3:00 until 4:00 AM to show off his skills. He hypnotized eleven students including Jessie Korenstra, Travis Speicher, Sam Calobrace, Caitlin Thornburg, Kayla Auer, Curtis Valentine, Scott Stuck, Braxton King, Jessica Henderson, Mike Weiss, and Carrie Alles.

WHAT'S THE FUTURE HOLD?

Grads

The senior class had 205 graduate on a very hot Friday night, May 31st at 7:00 PM in the gymnasium. Cait Thornburg introduced salutatorian Josh Dawes who spoke about choices the class would face in their futures. The commencement choir sang "Sounds of Hope" followed by Mike Weiss' presentation of valedictorian Lucas Speakman. After an audio Star Trek introduction, Lucas reminded the class of the frontier they had entered four years ago as freshmen and the new frontier that the class of 2002 was about to enter. Mr. Frank spoke about the qualities they would need as adults, and then he and Mr. Matz presented the diplomas. The tassels were turned, the candles lit and the new graduates marched outside to toss their hats in the air in celebration of their achievements.

How'd We Get This Far?
Third Years

"Education is our passport to the future, for tomorrow belongs to the people who prepare for it today."
-Malcolm X

The juniors started off their year well. At homecoming they took third place in the following events: mural, hamburger eating contest, and the skit. The girls also achieved third place for the powder puff game. The juniors then won first place in the float event. At the end of homecoming they had a total of 15 points and came in second place. For their fundraiser the juniors earned a profit of $10,098.90 for their candy sales and had a total sale of $22,442.00. At Christmas they raised the most money for the penny pitch and found themselves in first place. The class officers were president, Jessica Leach; vice-president, Ryan Cox; and secretary/treasurer, Kate Rummel. Members of the junior class council pictured below are row 1: Kate Rummel, Kate Murphy, Caylyne DeGood, and Caroline Mahnensmith; row 2: Chelsea Ross, Michael Cone, Jessica Ploszek, and Rita Berning; row 3: Michael Hall, Grant Gibson, Jon Dingeldein, Ryan Cox, and Jessica Leach.

TWO MORE YEARS?

Second Years

The sophomore class had a very successful year. In the overall standings after homecoming was over, they were in last place, but they managed to grab a second place in both the skit and the powder puff competitions. The Homecoming court members were Cassie Ellis and Alex Similton. When the weather turned warmer in the spring, they had the annual chicken barbecue fundraiser for their class treasury. The sophomore SRC members below are row 1: Brittany Wihebrink, secretary treasurer; row 2: Myhanh Montgomery, Matt Kubacki, vice-president; Jaime Petro, president; Sue Camire; row 3: Stacey Herman, Jodi Buhrt, Tyson Conrady, Fallon Judd, Brent Lamb, Meghan Lantz, Kim Hoover, Cari Van Lue, Cassie Ellis.

"Seek out that particular mental attribute which makes you feel the most deeply and vitally alive, along with which comes the inner voice which says, 'This is the real me,' and when you have found that attitude, follow it."

Frosh

"Enjoy yourself. These are the good old days you're going to miss in the years ahead."
-Anonymous

The freshman class had a rough start to the year with a not-so-striking homecoming performance. Homecoming king and queen court members were Jordan Swain and Lindsay Best. For homecoming events the freshmen captured 2nd place for the mural, received 2nd place for the hamburger eating contest, raised enough money for 3rd place in the penny pitch, created a float that came in 3rd place, and the girls lost both powder puff games putting them in 4th place. For the talent show, they did not have a skit prepared, so they earned a 4th place. Overall the freshman class came in 3rd place with a score of 18 points. The fundraiser in the spring for the freshmen was to sell magazines. Funds raised from this event were used to pay for homecoming expenses. Eventually this money was also used for prom and graduation expenses also. Freshmen were able to purchase class rings for the first time. They were offered all sorts of rings to choose from and were able to personalize them almost any way they wanted. Members of the SRC below are row 1: Amy Taylor, vice president; Carla Murphy, class president; Braedon Gerard, Allison Kropf, and Kelley Chang, secretary and treasurer; row 2: Kory Lantz, Austin Gerber, and Ben Champoux.

So what happens now?

Designers

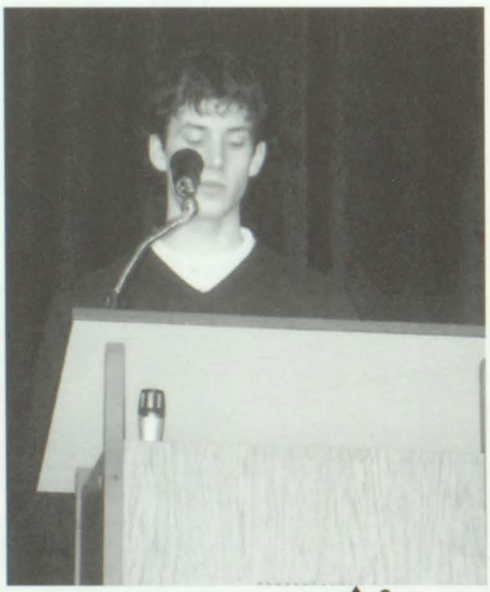

The yearbook staff had 11 members working on different aspects of making the book. The theme, a quote from William Shakespeare, "What's in a name?" was derived from the cover mosaic of every student's name. The Warrior on the cover was designed by Dave Butler. The photographers not only took pictures, they found quotes to continue the pattern of the title, which was also a quote. The book consisted of 212 pages on 8.5x11 paper. The paper that was used was #80 Bordeaux. Six hundred and forty yearbooks were sold. Herff Jones of Shawnee Mission, Kansas, published the Legend. There were six deadlines and the staff successfully met all of them. The total cost for the yearbook was $21,203.76; the books cost $35.34 each, but students only paid $28.00 each because of the ads the staff sold.

Life's Tomorrow

I approach the window
As bright light shines in
And I have to wonder
What's to happen next.
Staring out over green cornfields
Tinted gold by erupting tassels
As a breeze, rippling the corn
Pulls my eyes across the field.
Unknowing, unseeing, the wind travels on
Making a pattern
Starting the same
Then curving right and left
New and unique.
My foreboding is gone,
For the wind has taught me
That each new life,
Like the wind,
Will make a new path,
And each path of life
Will help another along the way
